ROBBERS KILL TWO IN STORE

Pomona liquor shop owner, clerk victims

POMONA — A liquor store owner and his employee were shot to death Sunday afternoon here in a robbery which netted their killers about $100.

The bodies of Merle Marvin Paup, 63, Covina, owner of Plaza Liquors at 1785 N. Garey Ave., and clerk Herb Yount, 62, 210 Sherwood Place, were found lying behind the store counter shortly after 2 p.m.

after 2 and selected two bottles of cocktail mix from the cooler. They put them on the counter with a $5 bill in payment. When Paup opened the cash register, one pulled a pistol, probably a .22 caliber, and shot him without provocation. Then Yount was shot as he made a grab for a .38-caliber revolver beneath the counter.

Police found the cash register open, with blood on the drawer. The crumpled $5 bill was on the counter with the two bottles of mix. An audit of the cash register tape indicated that about $100 was missing.

The bodies were discovered by Michael E. Bettencord, 22, who had gone to the liquor store to buy beer. He said he entered, went to the cooler for the beer and took it to the counter. He noticed a package of cigarettes lying on the floor and when he bent down to pick it up, he saw the bodies behind the counter.

Both bodies were taken to the coroner's office in Los Angeles where autopsies were planned today.

Paup had operated the liquor store since its opening almost exactly nine years ago. He opened it two years after retiring as general manager of Potlatch Forest's Mullen container division here.

CROWD AT KILLING SCENE

Part of the crowd drawn to the scene of a double slaying in a N. Garey Avenue liquor store Sunday is shown watching as police confer outside store. The store, Plaza Liquors, is located in shopping center across street from Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Police suspect two youths.

MERLE M. PAUP

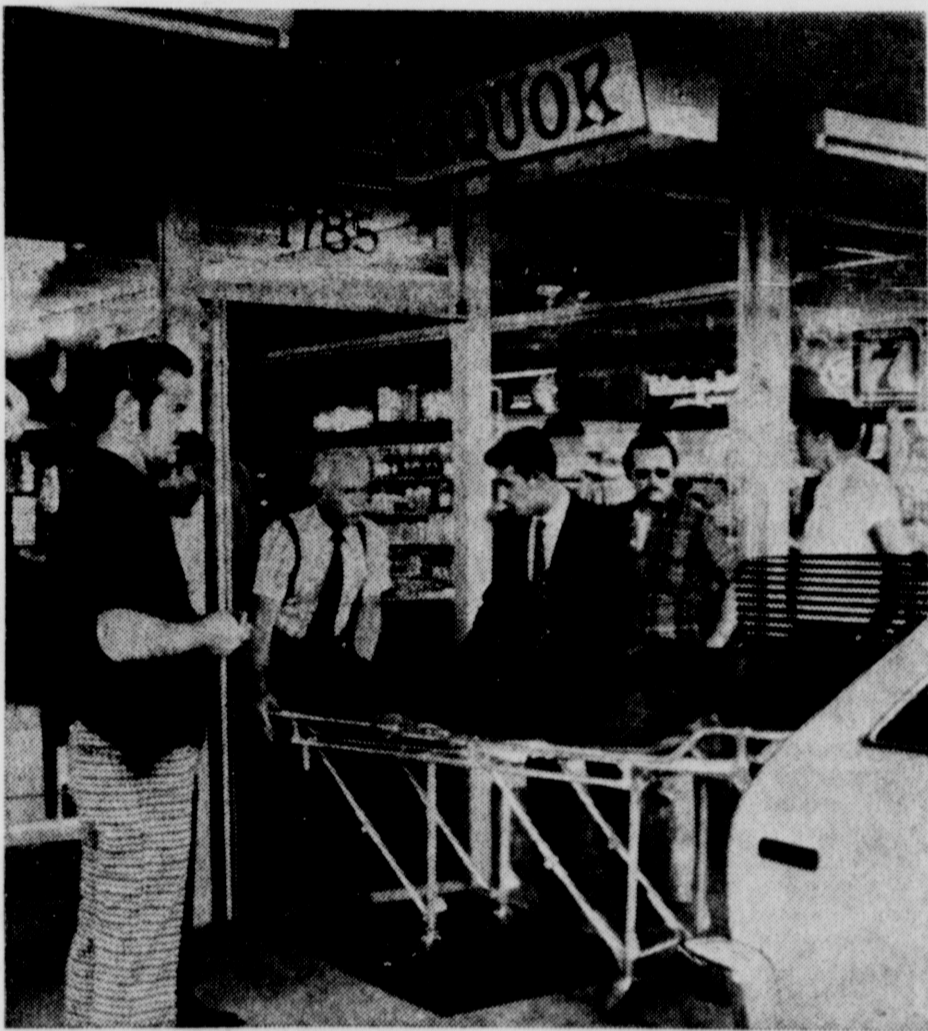

Paup, lying facedown, had been shot in the right ear. Yount, whose body was face up, had been shot in the right temple. Both were obviously dead when found.

Police are looking for two young men, possibly in their late teens, who were seen running from the liquor store. A woman, who had parked her car nearby, told officers she heard two shots and when she turned to look, she saw one youth run from the store, followed moments later by a second.

One was described as a Negro juvenile, 5 feet 5, medium build with long sideburns. He wore a dark navy watch cap and dark clothing. The other was about the same age, also wearing dark clothing.

Investigators theorized the slayings occurred in this manner:

Heat, strong winds sweep through area

A Santa Ana weather condition Sunday brought dry and warm weather with temperatures in the 90s throughout Pomona Valley.

The Indian Summer weather also gave threat today to strong gusty winds below canyon areas east of Ontario. Travelers' advisories have been posted today in areas of Etiwanda and Cajon Pass.

The strong winds are expected to decrease Tuesday but the warm weather will continue through Wednesday.

Small craft advisories were posted today from Point Conception to the Mexican border because of the wind conditions.

Mountain areas were clear and windy, with travelers' advisories posted in some areas because of the winds which gusted at 50 miles per hour at times.

Desert regions were also warm and windy today.

The National Weather Service office has forecast a high today of 91 degrees and a low tonight of 53 degrees. Normal temperatures for late October are for highs in the mid 70s and lows in the mid 40s.

FDA opposes easing rules regulating vitamin sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration testified today that proposed legislation to overturn an attempt by the FDA to regulate vitamins more closely would "promote widespread consumer fraud."

"All consumers will definitely be hurt by such legislation," Dr. Alexander Schmidt said. "Those who will benefit are the unscrupulous promoters who want to sell unproven substances or irrational combinations of substances as food supplements and who want to make unfounded claims to promote the sale of these articles."

Schmidt appeared at a congressional hearing on several bills to restrict the FDA's power to regulate vitamins.

If the intent of these bills would become law, we would, in effect, return to the 'patent medicine' abuses which prevailed at the turn of the century," Schmidt said.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., sponsor of one of the bills, said: "I strongly believe that those who do use these products, which no one has ever shown to be harmful in whatever quantities taken, should be freely allowed to continue doing so without being threatened with the extra trouble and unnecessary expense of having to get a medical prescription."

Crash kills Uplander, 20

UPLAND — A 20-year-old Upland man died here early Sunday morning in San Antonio Community Hospital from injuries he suffered when his automobile crashed on Mountain Avenue in San Antonio Heights.

The victim was Thomas Anthony Diedrich, 20, of 1748 Coolcrest St. According to the highway patrol, Diedrich was traveling south on Mountain Avenue at about 80 miles per hour when the vehicle went out of control on a curve, crossed the roadway, struck a raised asphalt berm, went over the berm into a dirt bank and turned over on its top.

The accident occurred at 1:15 a.m. Diedrich was believed to be returning from Mt. Baldy Village where he had left a girl friend, authorities said. The girl was not identified.

He died about three hours later. Funeral services are still pending at Stone Funeral Home.

The deceased was the son of Mrs. Ned Shetler of Upland, and was a student at Chaffey College.

Israelis let mercy convoy visit trapped Arab troops

By United Press International

Israeli forces in Egypt permitted a mercy convoy of food, water and medical supplies to cross its lines today for relief of the 20,000-man Egyptian 3rd Army trapped on the east bank of the Suez Canal, but its planes and guns shot down three Egyptian helicopters trying to reach the force in the middle of the night.

More men of a United Nations peace-keeping force moved out of Cairo today to form a buffer zone between the existing Israeli-Egyptian lines but a U.N. spokesman dodged the politically explosive question of a pullback by the two sides to the positions they held when the cease-fire went into effect Oct. 22.

Details of the agreement to let Egyptian trucks —with U.N. drivers—take supplies to the trapped Egyptian force were worked out in the first face-to-face meeting between Israeli and Arab officers in 17 years, a meeting Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir saw as a possible prelude to direct Arab-Israeli negotiations.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Ma'ariv said the United States was applying pressure to Israel to lift its encirclement of the Egyptian 3rd army whose surrender would threaten the survival of President Anwar Sadat's regime but that Israel is resisting the pressure.

Sadat dispatched an aide, acting Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi, to Washington today with a letter for President Nixon and possible talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. There was speculation in Cairo that the mission might be connected with forthcoming Mideast peace talks.

A possible clue to a future settlement came today from the well-informed Beirut newspaper An Nahar which said the United States and Russia had agreed on a broad plan calling for Israeli withdrawal from occupied lands but with a U.N. security force to safeguard its borders and establishment of a Palestinian state on the occupied west bank of the Jordan.

At a Cairo news conference this afternoon U.N. spokesman Col. Ake Bendrik said the job of the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF) was to move in between the lines the two sides now hold.

"What will happen after that, we have no idea," he said.

Asked if it was his mandate to establish the opposing lines as they existed on the night of Oct. 22 he replied:

"You are talking about political things. I am a soldier. As far as I know, we have to establish a situation just now. How they can establish the situation that existed on Oct. 22, I do not know. Nobody from the United Nations in Cairo knows about the situation on Oct. 22 because we were not in the field at that time. That is the big problem."

Bendrik said the convoy, which left Cairo Sunday, had been held up until this morning by the Israelis, who insisted all drivers be U.N. personnel. A Red Cross convoy carrying medical supplies to the 3rd Army was also blocked for the same reason, he said.

The truce area was generally quiet and the only major action reported today was Israel's shooting down of the Egyptian helicopters over the east bank.

Contempt trial for Chicago Seven opens on quiet note

CHICAGO (UPI) —The contempt trial of the Chicago Seven and their two attorneys opened today on a quiet note in sharp contrast to the stormy court sessions of 1969-70 which led to the charges.

The defense indicated it would move to have the trial delayed because the government revealed last Friday it had a full tape recording of the original 4 1/2 month trial. But U.S. District Court Judge Edward T. Gignoux said any such request would be considered only after the government presented its case and if the tapes were offered as evidence.

U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson opened the proceedings telling the court that the government has "no passion, no goals to achieve."

"We are here quite simply because the charges represent a fundamental assault on the court's ability to try a case," Thompson said. "We have made every gesture to reduce the case to that fundamental proposition."

Thompson said the government had decided to press the contempt charges despite some fears within its own ranks that to do so would "reopen old wounds in the body politic at a time when the body politic can not sustain many more wounds."

All seven of the defendants and their attorneys were in court for the opening session. They greeted one another affectionately as they took their seats at the defense table. The only disruption occurred when Abbie Hoffman's small son, Amerika, 2, started to cry. Hoffman quickly took him from the courtroom and the two returned later all smiles.

Hectic week in D.C.

Impeachment inquiry, feud on prosecutor, veto fights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress and the President face a bumpy week, including a preliminary inquiry on impeachment, hearings on the special prosecutor dispute, more activity by the Senate Watergate committee, two veto fights and a vote on the Alaska pipeline.

While the Senate Judiciary Committee was looking into legislation to have an independent Watergate prosecutor appointed by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, the administration prepared to name its own special prosecutor, setting the stage for a struggle of wills between the executive and legislative branches.

The House Judiciary Committee meets Tuesday to adopt procedures for a possible later impeachment inquiry against the President, and to discuss how to go about hearings on the nomination of House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford to be vice president. Most Democrats leaders have said Congress should proceed with approval of Ford rather than wait until the Watergate tapes or special prosecutor disputes are settled.

The Watergate committee meets in closed session Tuesday to plan its course. Though the President has agreed to give nine Watergate tapes to the courts, an earlier "compromise" plan to let the committee have them after "verification" by Sen. John C. Stennis D-Miss., apparently has fallen through.

The House will vote Thursday whether to override the President's veto of a bill limiting his authority to send troops overseas to 90 days unless Congress approves a longer period.

Gurney wants prosecutor free from Nixon control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., the Senate Watergate committee member considered friendliest to President Nixon, today joined a growing demand for appointment of a new special prosecutor who would be free from administration control.

"I think above all, we've got to have a special prosecutor that is independent, because I don't think people are going to buy the idea of a special prosecutor...that is the President's man, as part of the administration prosecuting the administration," Gurney said.

Gurney's comments came as the Senate Judiciary Committee prepared to begin hearings on the fast developing battle over the prosecutor's role and the firing of Archibald Cox as prosecutor.

The start of the hearings was delayed from this morning until the afternoon because a Capitol policeman suffered a heart attack at the hearing room.

Cox, who said Sunday Congress should establish an independent Watergate prosecutor by statute and should legislate out of existence any new special prosecutor named by the administration, was to be the committee's first witness.

Gurney said he felt the prosecutor could be named by the President or Acting Attorney General Robert H. Bork but said there should be an agreement that "he would be totally independent and that he could not be fired without consent of Congress."

He made the comments on the CBS-TV Morning News program.

Another Nixon supporter, former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, said in Austin, Tex., Sunday that the firing of Cox was a "healthy thing" but said "the President owes the country a better explanation for his actions than we got."

Bork, who hinted in a weekend interview that he may resign if the new prosecutor's independence was interfered with, has been instructed by Nixon to name a new special prosecutor to take over the Watergate investigation.

Middle East crisis real, solon admits

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said Sunday night President Nixon did not exaggerate the Middle East crisis last week in an attempt to divert public attention from Watergate-related issues.

Speaking to about 600 persons at Temple Adath Yeshurun, Baker, vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, said President Nixon's response to last week's Middle East crisis "prevented the annihilation of the Israeli nation."

"There was a real, deadly threat of massive intervention by the Soviet Union in the Middle East. It was a threat to the security of Israel and the United States itself," he said.

Baker, who said he had urged the White House to declassify as soon as possible documents dealing with U.S.-Soviet negotiations in the recent conflict, defended the President against charges he had overemphasized the siuation to divert attention from his Watergate problems.

"The Middle East crisis was not contrived for domestic diversion," he said.

Baker called for the appointment of a new special prosecutor, with full independence from the executive branch, to succeed the fired Archibald Cox.

"It is not enough at this point to have a special prosecutor appointed by the President," Baker said at a news conference before his address.

"We've got to have a new special prosecutor. We must shroud him and weave a cocoon around him so he has sufficient independence to do the job and do it quickly."

He said one possible compromise would be for Congress and the President to each name a prosecutor, both of whom would fall under the jurisdiction of U. S. District Court Judge John Sirica.

Capitol dome goes unlighted

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Energy-conscious state officials have ordered night lighting on the golden dome of the Connecticut State Capitol building shut off beginning today.

State Public Works Commissioner Paul J. Manafort said the electricity to be saved by not turning on the dome lights may not make a significant difference in itself.

"But we are taking the step to symbolize the need for all Connecticut citizens to conserve electricity in every way possible," Manafort said.

Nixon spends time on Mideast issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite major unresolved questions in the Watergate controversy, President Nixon devoted most of his weekend at Camp David to work on arranging peace talks in the Middle East, his chief aide said.

White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig said Nixon's efforts were concentrated on helping set up peace talks between Israel and its Arab neighbors, and included telephone conversations with advisers in Washington.

Nixon returned to the White House Sunday evening, but there were none of the protesters who had earlier planned to conduct a round-the-clock vigil in support of impeachment.

About 1,000 demonstrators picketed the White House Saturday, urging motorists on Pennsylvania Avenue to "honk for impeachment."

President should have released tapes earlier, Connally contends

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary John Connally said Sunday that President Nixon should have released his White House tapes months ago. He also said the President owed the public a more detailed explanation of why he fired Archibald Cox, the Watergate special prosecutor.

"If indeed he was going to change his mind about the tapes, I'm sorry that he didn't do it three months ago or four months ago," Connally said in an interview on the "Capital Eye" television program.

"I think it would have saved him and saved the country an awful lot of trouble and chaos and confusion in the minds of some," the former Texas governor said.

Seven weeks ago Connally responded to reporters' questions about Nixon's right to withhold the tapes by saying there were some instances in which a

Quebec voters troop to polls

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Quebec's 3 million voters decide today between leaders who want the province to remain part of Canada and Separatists who want the mostly French-speaking region to cut ties with the rest of the country.

Voters may choose from candidates representing four different political parties, but the campaign was mostly a two-way battle between the Separatists' Parti Quebecois and the Federalist Liberals.

Pre-election polls showed Liberal Premier Robert Bourassa to be virtually assured of re-election, but Rene Levesque's Parti Quebecois, which advocates separation from Canada, could pick up enough seats in the 110-member National Assembly to become the official opposition in the parliamentary system.

Levesque, however, has maintained that if his Parti Quebecois should win, the election would not automatically mean separation from Canada. He said it would only lead to a referendum on a new constitution.

Uruguay closes state university

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) — The Uruguayan military government closed the national university today and placed the rector, the deans and 150 other persons under arrest for allowing subversive activities within the university.

Interior Minister Col. Nestor Bolentini announced the arrests and said the situation at the University of the Republic is "disastrous... The universities are no longer universities."

The government decided to intervene in the university after a four-hour meeting Sunday night among President Juan Maria Bordaberry, cabinet members and the commanders of the armed forces. Bordaberry has ruled by decree with the advice and consent of the military since June 27 when he closed Congress.

The crisis began Saturday when an explosion in the engineering school killed Marcos Caridad Jordan, 22, a chemistry student making a bomb.

Security forces immediately searched the university and found "arms, ammunition, explosive material... and a plan to systematically disturb the public order on certain dates," the government said.

president would be justified in ignoring a Supreme Court order. However, Connally did not amplify that statement.

Asked Sunday about the firing of Cox, Connally said, "I think it's a healthy thing," but he added the public should be told exactly why this action was taken.

"I must say that the President owed the country a better explanation for his actions than we got," Connally said.

Speaking earlier in Houston to the American Dental Association convention, Connally said those calling for impeachment of Nixon should either act or drop the matter.

"If those who have charged forth so bravely with their demands for impeachment of the President really think they have a case, then it's time for them to put up or shut up," he said.

CONTEMPT CHARGED

Abbie Hoffman holds his 2-year-old son, "America," during a news conference in Chicago Sunday. Hoffman, along with other defendants of the Chicago Seven, face contempt of court charges in a new trial which began today. The contempt charges stem from their behavior of the defendants and their attorneys during their 1969-70 trial in which they were acquitted on charges of conspiring to cross state lines to incite rioting at the riotous 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago.

Tricia profits in land deal charged by magazine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government investigators are looking into the possibility that Tricia Nixon Cox, the President's elder daughter, profited from the sale of Florida land bought by her father and failed to report the gain on her income tax return, Newsweek magazine reports this week.

The White House called the story "false and irresponsible" and part of a "witch hunt atmosphere" in the national news media.

According to Newsweek, investigators are also probing three "previously undisclosed trusts" set up by the President and controlled by former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

The White House confirmed existence of the trusts naming Haldeman and Ehrlichman but said they were set up as a plan for property at the time of the President's death and contained only token assets.

"The Newsweek magazine story publishing charges about the President's finances and which is now becoming a national news story is false and extremely irresponsible in its implications and in the way it was developed," the White House statement said.

"Newsweek's collection of rumors including suggestions of property manipulation by the President to reduce capital gains taxation illustrates the difficulty of dealing with this kind of story and the great and irreparable damage it causes."

"Newsweek's decision to publish this story, developed from anonymous sources, instead of taking the time to establish its accuracy and to do so in the face of flat denials from the White House is symptomatic of the witch hunt atmosphere in which false information and harmful impressions about the President are being generated and broadly disseminated to the American people by major news media."

The magazine said Nixon bought two lots of land near his Key Biscayne home for $37,600 in 1967 and sold them five years later for $150,000, leaving him a profit of $112,400.

Newsweek called Mrs. Cox "an unrecorded partner in the deal," saying her name was not on the purchase or sale documents but that "associates of the President" said the purchase price included $20,000 of her money.

According to Newsweek, investiga-

Troop, arms cuts overseas being probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alleged lack of cooperation by European allies during the U.S. military response to the Middle East crisis has prompted administration officials to take a "hard look" at possible troop and arms cutbacks overseas.

Government sources said no decisions have been made, but they reported discussions are taking place, involving a serious review about U.S. military relationships with the NATO allies.

"We're going to be taking a hard look at whether this has long-range implications, or whether it was just a crisis anomaly," one official said. "We may very well decide we want to put some of those forces (in Europe) somewhere else."

The sources said that while the United States regards its military operations in Europe to be part of an overall force ready for use in any emergency, the response to the crisis events last week indicated to some in Washington that the European allies view the American forces as restricted to the defense of Europe only.

tors told it "they have information that the President claimed the entire capital gain on the deal as income on his own federal income tax return."

"Since he had established large deductions in donations and interest paid, the theory ran, he would pay less total tax on Tricia's share of the profit than she would have owed."

The White House said: "The President did not claim the entire capital gain from the sale of the property cited on his tax return. On the contrary, the President and his daughter each reported their share of the profit."

Newsweek quoted the White House as saying it was "not aware of any official investigation relating to the President's personal finances."

In the statement issued Sunday evening, the White House said Arthur Blech, the California accountant who handled the President's tax returns, was "asked questions about the President's taxes in his interview with the Watergate committee on Friday and that these questions were worded in a virtually identical fashion to the Newsweek story."

"Mr. Blech, the statement continued, 'stated that he informed the committee investigators that the allegations had no basis in fact' and that he had not been contacted by Newsweek."

"Again," the White House statement concluded, "we face a situation where a story runs nationally which is untrue; where the first wire service reports to not contain the denials of the White House and the clarifying facts have difficulty catching up with the original and extremely harmful story."

"It is unfortunate that supposedly responsible media are more interested in publishing anonymous rumors than they are in determining the truth of what they print."

Longest Viet prisoner weds

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Navy Lt. Cmdr. Everett Alvarez Jr., a North Vietnamese prisoner of war for more than eight years, was married Saturday to Thomasine "Tammy" Ilyas, 33, of suburban Munhall.

The ceremony was performed at St. George Eastern Orthodox Church in the city's Oakland section. Some of Alvarez' fellow POWs formed an arch of swords for the couple as they left the church.

Top business barometer turns down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's index of leading business indicators, considered one of the best barometers of future economic conditions, turned down 0.4 per cent in September after a virtually uninterrupted three-year rise, the Commerce Department said today.

With the exception of a 1.1 per cent decline last April, it was the first falloff in the closely watched index since September, 1970, when the last big business expansion was getting under way.

Since the index has never failed to drop prior to a slowdown in the overall economy — or turn up before the start of a business expansion — turnabouts such as that for September generally raise speculation that a fundamental change in the economy's health may have taken place.

The index does not consist of new economic figures, but rather is an adjusted average of 12 monthly economic reports. Eight are always reported first and four others later, accounting for frequent revisions in the index number.

Last month, only two indicators rose — the length of the average work week, and stock prices. New claims for unemployment insurance dropped in September but that is considered a good sign for the index.

Five indicators dropped for the month — new orders for durable goods, contracts and orders for plants and equipment, price-labor cost ratio, industrial materials prices and building permits.

The index stood at 166.7 in September compared to 167.3 in August. In September, 1970, the index was 113.3.

Loans-to-Ford charge denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A spokesman for the Senate Rules Committee, which will hold hearings on the nomination of Gerald R. Ford to be vice president, has denied that the panel received an affidavit from a lobbyist charging that Ford accepted $15,000 in loans he never paid back.

Columnist Jack Anderson reported Sunday that lobbyist Robert N. Winterberger submitted a four-page affidavit to the Senate Rules Committee charging that Ford accepted the money in "amounts of $50 to about $250" between 1966 and September, 1969, and never offered to pay it back.

Anderson quoted an unnamed aide to Ford as saying Winterberger's accusation was a "categorical lie," and Ford told UPI the allegations are false.

The lobbyist, Anderson reported, said the total amount of cash was "in the neighborhood of $15,000" and the money was accepted by Ford "to cover an illness and hospitalization of his wife..." according to Anderson. On other occasions, Winterberger was reported to have said, the Michigan congressman "complained that he was short of money."

The House Judiciary Committee meets Tuesday to discuss ground rules for Ford's confirmation hearings.

Use coal for cleaner air, oilmen urge

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States could ease its energy problems by slowing the drive for clean air and taking advantage of its huge coal reserves, the National Petroleum Council said Sunday.

The NPC is an industry group that advises the secretary of interior on energy matters.

"Delays in the enforcement of severe air pollution regulations pending commercial availability of the respective technologies may well be in the public interest," the NPC said.

"U.S. coal resources can make a major contribution to the nation's future energy needs with further development and application of technologies for solving environmental problems," the NPC said.

The NPC estimated recoverable coal, the coal "firmly defined" by geologic work and past experience, at 150 billion tons. At current demand that figure is 300 years' supply. The U.S. Geological Survey estimates the total amount of coal in the United States at 3.2 trillion tons.

If technology could get at that, it would be thousands of years' supply.

The NPC projected demand at about 863 million tons a year by 1985. It is 150 million now.

Technology could make the deeper and thinner layers of coal recoverable, the NPC said, but "unfortunately, current efforts toward development of new technology are minimal."

Reagan, Moretti meet on Prop. 1 -- finally

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —After criss-crossing each other for months in a bitter, frustrating campaign, Gov. Ronald Reagan and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti will meet on the same platform tonight to debate the governor's tax limit initiative.

Also arguing against Prop. 1 will be former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who Reagan ousted from office in 1966.

Reagan, Moretti, Brown and three others will debate the complex and controversial issue on the hour-long public broadcasting program, "The Advocates." The program will be taped tonight and shown in every major viewing area of California before the Nov. 6 special statewide election on Reagan's proposal.

There will be a bit of irony in the confrontation.

Moretti has been stalking Reagan since spring, trying unsuccessfully to goad the governor into a face-to-face debate over the initiative. In 1966, Reagan persistently challenged Brown to a campaign debate and the Democrat refused. Tonight, though indirectly, Reagan finally will get his crack at Brown; and Moretti at Reagan.

But because six people are involved — and Reagan and Moretti will not be able to cross examine each other—neither side regards this as the big debate the speaker vigorously has been seeking.

"This is the most important single issue the people of California have ever had to vote on," said Moretti, "but the governor is asking the people to sign the dotted line and never mind the fine print."

Reagan, a skilled television performer who earned his living before Hollywood cameras for three decades, said he agreed to appear on "The Advocates" because "the proceedings would be confined to facts and issues, rather than hysterical rhetoric."

The program format will consist of state Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale, leading the debating team for Reagan's side and one of the show's regular members, Howard Miller, heading the opposition contingent. They will call "witnesses," similar to a courtroom scene.

Reagan and University of Chicago economist Milton Friedman will be called as witnesses for the initiative. Moretti and Brown will be the opposition witnesses.

The show will be taped at KTLA-TV.

Reagan's initiative would place a gradually declining limit on total taxes the state could collect, tied to overall California personal income. It also would immediately reduce the state income tax 7 1/2 per cent. Moretti contends this would cut back state services and shift a greater burden to property taxpayers, two things Reagan denies.

With only a week of campaigning left, Reagan's side says it has a public opinion poll which shows the proposition ahead, but many voters undecided.

Although the underdog, Moretti says "my gut feeling is we really have a shot at beating it."

Reagan's side expects to spend more than $1.1 million on the total campaign, including the signature drive to qualify the initiative for the ballot. The opposition campaign estimates its expenditures at $300,000.

U.S. military alert backed by senator

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., believes the Soviet Union took advantage of President Nixon's Watergate troubles last weekend by taking belligerent attitude toward the Middle East crisis.

He brushed aside suggestions that the worldwide military alert of United States forces was phony or a tactic designed to take the nation's mind off the domestic scandal.

"Our professionals—the men in uniform, our intelligence forces—met for hours Wednesday and concluded the Middle East situation was a serious thing," Jackson said Sunday.

"Had there been a showdown, and this is the tragedy of the problem, it would have gone nuclear, because we simply did not have the divisions that could match some six immediate airborne divisions that could have been deployed into the area by the Soviets."

Jackson also said Nixon should bring the country together by reappointing special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, Attorney General Elliot Richardson and Deputy General William Ruckelshaus.

"If you say, look, I goofed. I made a mistake and I admit my mistake, I miscalculated, well then, the public is forgiving," he said.

Unless this is done, Jackson said, "He is going to find it increasingly difficult to lead this country."

Fund switches subject to tax

By ROGER SPEAR

Q—I plan to retire in December, 1974. We hold 550 shares of Dreyfus Fund, 900 National Investors Corp., 450 Signal Companies and 25 Investment Co. of America. Should these be held or replaced with income securities?—T.S.

A—Your portfolio, worth approximately $27,000, returns $515 annually from dividend income, a meager 1.9 per cent yield. In addition, $518 in capital gains have been distributed by the three funds and a 3 per cent stock dividend was paid by Signal. For the present I would advise exchanging the Dreyfus Fund shares for those of Dreyfus Special Income Fund. Because your other two funds have had an above-average performance since 1968, retention is advised, at least until your retirement is an accomplished fact. At that time exchange of ICA for Washington Mutual Investors and National for Whitehall Fund should be considered. Exchanges of this type, from one fund to another under the same management company, are executed at net asset value plus a small service charge. The transaction is treated, for tax purposes, in the same manner as a sale and purchase and is not a tax-free exchange.

Signal has moved up 73 per cent from its June low benefiting from a jump in earnings, takeover attempts and a major oil discovery in the North Sea. I would take advantage of this opportunity to dispose of these shares. As a replacement equal dollar amounts of Central Maine Power (NYSE) and Norfolk & Western (NYSE) are recommended.

Q—We found the following stock certificates after my mother-in-law's death: Santa Maria Petroleum, common and preferred, Hamilton Petroleum and Western Natural Resources. How can we find if these shares issued in the 1930s have any value?—H.D.

A—Sorry that I can't shed any light on the possible worth of these securities. However, if you write to: R.H. Smythe Co., 170 Broadway, N.Y., N.Y. 10038, they will for a small fee trace the value or lack of same for these certificates.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally, but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Q—I purchased 200 shares of Lockheed Aircraft (NYSE) at 12 about 2 years ago. It is now down to about 6 1/2. I also own a few shares of Varian Associates (NYSE) which are down in price. I need advice.—E.V.

A—Although Lockheed shares are definitely speculative, this situation is making progress. The L-1011 program, which is a critical one for the company, has not yet reached the breakeven level. Firm orders for 123 of these aircraft had been received and as of early July, 37 deliveries had been made. So far this year 20 of the 37 deliveries scheduled had been completed. Breakeven level for the L-1011 TriStar is generally believed to be at the 275-plane level.

The company has estimated that sales will rise 11 per cent for the year to $2.75 billion. In the first half sales recovery exceeded that rate, increasing 14.5 per cent on a 19 per cent gain in backlog. Earnings for the six months rose 4 per cent year to year to 70 cents a share. Higher interest costs and administrative expenses related to the TriStar program were factors in the narrower profit margin this year. With continued patience this investment should gradually work out for you.

Varian has been highly successful in turning operations around from the deficit levels of 1971. As of the 9 months through June, earnings were equal to 69 cents a share versus 25 cents in the previous year. For the full fiscal year, profit should approximate $1.00 a share, the best level since 1966. Backlog at June 30 was $113 million, 47 per cent ahead of the year-earlier figure.

The about-face in operations is primarily the result of changes instituted by new management which took over in 1971. Reorganization in its marketing division, consolidation of production groups, elimination of certain products, and closer cost control measures, have aided margins. In addition, an 18.6 per cent increase in 9-month sales was important in the higher take-down—profit margin after tax rose to 2.7 per cent from 1.2 per cent. Hold for continued recovery.

Q—Is there a clearinghouse of some sort which will provide some general information on the mutual fund industry?—E.S.

A—The Investment Company Institute, 1775 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006, might be classified as a clearinghouse for the industry. Once a year, in the spring, the association publishes The Fact Book which gives statistics on the fund industry as a whole. Other booklets, which are also available through this company, have information of withdrawal plans, retirement planning, etc.

In addition, new releases on the mutual fund industry are published by Irving L. Straus Assoc., 475 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10016, a public relations firm.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—“Considering that the Midast War and the 100-point jump in the Dow Jones industrial average in less than a month, the market has given up little ground,” says the Alexander Hamilton Institute. Other negatives overlooked by the market include a falling off of business sales in August, the Federal Reserve Board's intention to hold to tight credit policies, and a survey showing a marked deterioration in consumers' attitudes, the firm added. “The bull market is far from running out of steam,” it said.

The Dines Letter says the recent rally is a major bear market spearheaded by “mutual fund window dressing which precipitated a stampede by those eager to commit their reserves.” The rally ended in late September, the letter continues, and the unhealthy international situation “this month” means it is going to be increasingly easy to lose money in this market. “It advised investors to maintain a cautious stance and to wait to buy bargains until ‘this up trend proves it can sustain itself.’”

“Sharply shifting market values characterized by vicious sawtooth patterns for a number of favored issues suggests the wisdom of taking profits on a selective basis,” says the Spear Market Report. The flow of third quarter earnings reports is ebbing, and substantial revisions for all of 1973 and 1974 are beginning to emerge, it adds. The letter says a moderate general market correction is a “looming possibility.”

The September rally arrived just a few days after the brokerage industry was granted the right to raise commissions, says Reynolds Securities Inc. “Going back 30 years, the brokerage industry has been granted five previous commission increases,” it continues, and without exception the next year witnessed an upsurge in volume. “If precedent is followed, stock activity in 1974 will be substantially better than the current year's,” the firm adds.

Until the announcement U.S. armed forces have been placed on alert supposedly in response to reports that Russian troops were moving to the Middle East is clarified, prices will slide, according to E.F. Hutton. “The market may not be in the best technical condition to withstand many more shocks here,” the firm continues, with breadth figures showing more declines than advances in recent sessions.

E.F. Hutton's market bulletin noted, however, the glimmers have temporarily reassured market leadership. “While this may be only a temporary phenomenon,” the company says, “it is another example of the rotational leadership that is characteristic of major advancing phases.” The company cautions, though, that for the short-term, “the market is now quite overbought technically.”

When skeletons rattle and black cats howl, when jack-o'-lanterns flicker and broom-borne witches swoosh over rooftops, the 2,000-year-old festival of Halloween will be here again.

Why the night of Oct. 31 should be shrouded in so many ancient legends of spooks and specters is really no mystery. For All Hallow's Eve, or Halloween, is one of the oldest folklore celebrations in the calendar, according to Flora Mears, a designer of party goods for Hallmark Cards. Its origins go back to the pagan Druids and Celtic tribes of Britain and Ireland, who celebrated their great autumn sun festival on Nov. 1.

The night before, Miss Mears says, they paid tribute to Samhain, the Lord of Death, hoping this would cause him to be less severe on those who had died during the previous year. An important part of this festival was the lighting of bonfires to ward off evil spirits—a custom still practiced in Scotland and Wales at Halloween. The Scottish fire ritual, which includes leaping through the flames, is called Samhagan.

Black cats also figured in these early Halloween rites. The Druids regarded them as sacred, embodying the souls of people whom Samhain had punished for their evil deeds.

Other examples of mystical, magical Halloween lore collected by Flora Mears include the tradition of bobbing for apples in a tub, which also has Druidic origins and goes back to the Middle Ages, and the practice in England of telling fortunes and ghost stories at Halloween.

But perhaps the oddest Halloween tradition unearthed by the Hallmark designer is one prevalent in Scotland. There, young women pull cabbage stalks out of the ground and judge by the amount of soil clinging to the roots whether their future husband will be fat or thin, rich or poor.

Defense seeks proper attack

Jim: "With today's hand either a rubber-bridge or match-point player should go all out to defeat the contract. The match-point player would see that he could have saved cheaply against South's game and therefore could not expect a good score if the contract waltzed home."

Oswald: "West's king of clubs holds the first trick. He should note that if his partner holds either the ace of diamonds or king of hearts that two spade tricks added to one club and one red-suit trick will beat declarer. He should then decide on the best way to get two spade tricks."

Jim: "An immediate spade play is essential. He can't lead the ace or nine and get his two spade tricks if East holds the jack and South has at least three spades."

Tipster may pick up reward in dope case

POMONA — The We T.I.P. (We Turn In Pushers, Inc.) Board of Directors has authorized a tipster to pick up his reward for information that aided Pomona police in arresting and gaining a conviction for a Pomona man suspected of selling marijuana.

Deadline on signups for reunion Nov. 1

POMONA — A final deadline of Nov. 1 has been set for reservations for the Garey High School Class of 1968 five-year reunion.

The event will be held Nov. 10 at the Western Hills Country Club from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Music for dancing will be provided by Soak 'n' Wet.

The cost is $9 per couple or $4.50 per person. Checks made payable to the Garey High School Class of 1968 should be sent to Karen Van Buskirk Howey, 1111 S. Reservoir St., No. 8, Pomona, 91766.

Thieves get cash, watches at store

CLAREMONT — Thieves broke into Peterson's Pharmacy at 863 W. Foothill Blvd. early Saturday morning and made off with 26 wristwatches and a small amount of cash from three registers.

Police reported the thieves broke a glass panel in the door with a rock to gain entry into the store at about 4 a.m.

The We T.I.P. Board said the tipster designated as GC 1282 may go to his pre-arranged drop point to pick up his reward.

Pomona police informed We T.I.P. that an anonymous tipster's information aided them in arresting Ricky Howard, 21, of 2476 Mariposa Ave. At the time of Howard's arrest police said they seized five kilos of marijuana with a street value of $3,000. Howard according to police, subsequently pleaded guilty in Pomona Superior Court to one count of sales of marijuana and was fined $250 and placed on three years probation.

According to the We T.I.P. Board of Directors, a person may call the toll-free, statewide TIP line 800-472-7785 or the local line 714-983-9611, between noon and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and turn in a suspected pusher without the fear of reprisal. An informant can supply intelligence information to the proper authorities through We T.I.P. while still keeping his or her identity unknown.

If the suspected pusher is convicted in a court, the tipster will, if he requests it, receive a reward of $100 to $500 at a prearranged secret drop point, the board said.

Since We T.I.P. was formed 19 months ago nearly $9,000 in rewards has been paid to anonymous informants. The informants' information has aided local law enforcement officers in arresting 364 persons suspected of trafficking in illegal drugs and narcotics, with 77 convictions. Nearly $2 million in illicit drugs have been seized.

Truck injures pedestrian

POMONA — A young man was injured Saturday night when he was hit by a pickup truck as it sideswiped a parked car he was standing near, police reported.

Milo M. Ortega, 24, of 1946 S. Park Ave., was treated for cuts and bruises at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released.

The driver of the pickup, Alfonso Meza Guevara, 54, of 2567 Virginia Ave., left the accident scene after the crash, officers reported, but was arrested later. He was booked on suspicion of felony hit-run and drunken driving.

Ortega was standing next to the car, parked in Park Avenue south of Lexington Avenue, when the accident occurred shortly before 8 p.m.

Haunted mansion will stay open

POMONA — The Pomona Breakfast Lions Club's Haunted Mansion, located at Pomona Valley Center, will continue its operation tonight through Wednesday.

Featuring a variety of Halloween thrills, the Mansion will be in operation 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Parties and giveaways on menu for Halloween

POMONA — The parks and recreation department will sponsor Halloween parties at three locations and a "Goblin Give-Away" on Wednesday.

The parties, for elementary school-age children, are scheduled to start at 6 p.m. at Palomares Park Community Center, 499 E. Arrow Highway, Washington Park Community Center, 865 E. Grand Ave., and Westmont Park Community Center, 1780 W. Ninth St.

Parties will include games, films, refreshments, prizes and fun and are free. Activities at each of the three locations will end at 8 p.m., giving children time to be home by 8:30 when the Goblin Give-Away will start.

Abandoned housing committee to meet

The Pomona Valley Action Committee on Abandoned Housing will hold its next meeting on Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the Chino Public Library, D Street and Central Avenue.

The meeting will include a summary of the committee's Oct. 19 meeting with federal housing officials and Congressional representatives, a discussion on proposed recommendations to local congressmen and a proposal for a region-wide federal grant.

To be eligible for more than 50 prizes, children, up to and including sixth graders, must be residents of Pomona and must register to participate.

Children whose names are drawn will be called at home. If the child is home when the goblin calls, that child will receive a prize.

Registration may be made at the parks and recreation office in City Hall, the Pomona Public Library's children's section, or through local after-school recreation programs. The deadline for registration is 5:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Talk on burglary prevention slated

POMONA — A presentation on burglary prevention by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's department will highlight a meeting of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons on Nov. 6.

The 7 p.m. meeting will be held at Pilgrim Congregational Church.

Nominations for officers for 1974 will also be discussed at the meeting. Tickets for the chapter's Christmas party at the Diamond Bar Country Club and registration for the club's Desert Hot Springs trip will be taken.

Singapore film slated for forum

POMONA — A film entitled "In Search of Singapore" will be shown and narrated by producer-photographer Kenneth Wolfgang before the Pomona Forum audience today at 7:45 p.m. in the District Education Center auditorium at 800 S. Garey Ave.

This film tells the story of the Chinese, Malays, Indians, Dyaks and Muruts who live side by side between the City of Singapore on the southern tip of the Malaya Peninsula and Kuala Lumpur, capital of Malaysia, an area called the melting pot of Asia.

All maintain their cultural backgrounds while taking pride as citizens of Malaysia and Singapore, according to Wolfgang.

"These courageous people struggle to wrest their nations from the ever-encroaching natural jungle on one hand and carve a place for themselves in our civilized jungle on the other," said Wolfgang.

Pomona has statistics on new feat, gum-chewing

Would you please tell us the record for gum chewing in Pomona? If there isn't one, we'll set one.—H.W., T.S. and D.S., Pomona.

We haven't been able to uncover a gum-chewing record in Pomona.

We therefore proclaim Helen Wolff, 11, of 1228 Indian Hill Blvd. gum-chewing endurance champion of Pomona, subject to evidence to the contrary.

Tina Smith, 12, of 181 Fanshaw Ave. informed us that Helen chewed the same piece of gum for a total of 22 hours and 25 minutes. She took time out only for eating and sleeping.

Helen and the other contestants, Tina and her sister Diana, 9, called upon the Smith girls' parents to be witnesses.

A tip for challengers: When gum got hard while contestants were sleeping, it was soaked in hot water to make it pliable.

Tina told Action Line that the contest resulted from being part of a live audience for the television production of "Willie Wonka and the Chocolate Factory." A character in the story chewed one piece of gum for two months.

Diana finished second in the competition. Tina got stuck with a sore throat in the early stretches of the contest.

We now have a request from R. O., 12, and Susan Price, H, also of Pomona for information on the banana eating record.

Because we don't want the consequences of a stuffing duel on our conscience, we refuse to investigate.

Last night a woman called my home saying that she was a representative of Standard Oil Co. and that we had been picked to receive credit cards.

She asked for some credit information. Without thinking, I gave it to her. She told me that our cards would arrive by mail. She didn't give her name.

I don't know what this woman is trying to do but I feel the public must be warned about her. She may work out of a credit office or bureau. —Mrs. P. H., Chino.

At the Long Beach Division Office of Standard Oil, L. L. Dempster told us that Standard Oil has made credit card offers by phone in the past but the person phoning was required to give both the name of the company and his or her name.

He doubts whether any such phone campaign is being made by Standard Oil now in view of oil shortages.

Can you help me get my deposit back from an apartment house manager?

I moved there a year ago. I gave a $175 deposit. When I moved out three months ago, I signed papers agreeing that I was to get only $138 back because the apartment had to be painted.

I lived alone with my two children at the time and it was very difficult for me to raise the $175 deposit.

My husband and I are together now and we need the money very much because we are starting all over again.

The managers tell me they don't know why I have not received my money but they won't give me the address of the office the refund should come from. —D. S., Pomona.

When we called one of the managers, we were told you already had been sent your deposit refund.

Your complaint is one of many about rental deposits, a category rivaling veterans' educational benefits and mail order merchandise.

EDITORIAL

Mideast war casts a shadow

As it became more and more apparent that the Arab-Israeli war would not be a short affair, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned in a news conference that "the Middle East may become in time what the Balkans were in Europe before 1914."

"That is to say, an area where local rivalries have their own momentum that will draw the great nuclear powers into a confrontation that they did not necessarily seek or even necessarily start."

It is disturbing to realize how much the Middle East situation today does resemble the pre-World War I Balkans, where one fine summer's day the assassination of an Austrian archduke set into motion a series of international treaty commitments which quickly plunged all of Europe into a devastating war.

There are, thankfully, some vital differences. In 1914, the great powers of France, Russia and Germany, each supremely confident of its own moral and military superiority, had long been spoiling for a fight. Each had its own plan of action that had been drilled into a generation of officers. Each was sure that a conflict would be brief and glorious.

Some of these elements are present today, including the belief that a nuclear war would be over in a matter of hours or days. But this conviction is not based on any 1914-style illusion that any country would emerge victorious from such a conflict.

We know that a nuclear war would mean the end of much, if not all, of what we are pleased to call civilization, on both sides.

The danger of which Kissinger warned certainly does exist, and will continue to exist as long as permanent peace in the Middle East is not secured. But the acknowledged realities of this nuclear age make all the difference in the world between 1973 and 1914.

They MUST make all the difference if we are to have a world.

Clark Kent on wheels

A new development on the technological front holds out promises of being both a sword and a plowshare. It's portable radar capable of "looking down" through concrete and several feet of soil to locate buried objects, nonmetallic as well as metallic.

The penetrating radar was developed by Calspan Corp., formerly Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, in association with Army researchers.

The Army has long wanted something like this since the advent of plastic mines, which cannot be spotted by conventional mine detectors. Such mines, which are inexpensive to manufacture, caused many of the U.S. casualties in Vietnam.

One civilian application, says Calspan, is the detection of buried bodies, a severe problem in law enforcement for which no satisfactory technology existed before.

Another major use will be to map the exact location and depth of underground conduits, sewers and water lines, which could mean reduced digging at busy street intersections, where lines have been buried at various times over a period of many years, and not always where old city maps say they were supposed to go.

One version of the radar, carried on a vehicle, could monitor the subsurface condition of highways. Cruising at 60 miles an hour, it could be used to guide routine maintenance or survey entire highway systems for hidden weakened spots in areas where flooding has occurred.

What's a crime?

It may seem as if the days of domination of our lives by the far left activists, especially in the courts, had finally passed. But that isn't necessarily so.

The old outlandish propaganda is pouring out in the trial in Madison, Wisconsin, of a former student charged with the slaying of a physicist in the explosion that shattered the Army Mathematics Research Center on the University of Wisconsin campus three years ago.

Theme of the defense seems to be that the bombing was not a criminal act because it was politically motivated.

Prominent in defense fund raising are the entirely predictable Jane Fonda and her husband Tom Hayden. The equally predictable Rev. Philip Berrigan is the defendant's "religious adviser."

Berrigan's participation, the Wall Street Journal suggests, offers an interesting possibility of a new tack from the old liberal position "that lawlessness, including murder and crimes of violence, is somehow justified if it is politically or ideologically motivated."

Mrs. Berrigan, it seems, recently pleaded guilty to shoplifting in suburban Baltimore, an act deliberately demonstrating the radical concept of shoplifting as a way of "ripping off the establishment." Berrigan concurred in her decision that it was, after all, a mistaken concept. In other words, there shouldn't be two sets of rules for the one for ordinary criminals and another for ideological radicals.

Is it too much to hope that Berrigan, Fonda, et al will apply that new concept to murder?

Cash 'loans' to Ford disclosed

WASHINGTON — A former lobbyist has sworn to the Senate Rules Committee that he "loaned" vice presidential nominee Gerald Ford $15,000 to cover urgent personal needs. The loan, said lobbyist Robert Winter-Berger, was never repaid.

In addition, said Winter-Berger, at Ford's request he arranged contributions totalling more than $125,000 to various Republican campaign committees.

The ex-lobbyist, author of a book called "The Washington Pay-Off," went well beyond his literary recollections in a four-page affidavit which he has given to the committee and to us. Winter-Berger said he will submit to a lie detector test if necessary. Ford categorically denied the charges. As Winter-Berger put it in his affidavit:

"Between 1966 and September of 1969, I personally loaned Gerald Ford in the neighborhood of $15,000 . . . This money was given to Ford in cash to cover an illness and hospitalization of his wife . . . At other times, he complained that he was short of money."

Never repaid

Winter-Berger swore that the loans were made in "amounts of $50 to about $250" over the three-year period. He did not ask repayment and Ford never offered it, he said.

The dapper, balding former man-about-town said he also arranged for Francis Kellogg, now a special assistant to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, to contribute $125,000 to various Republican causes at the request of Ford.

"I arranged for Kellogg to meet at least twice with Gerald Ford at Kellogg's request," attested Winter-Berger. "Ford agreed to help Kellogg get a government post. I have correspondence in my possession which proves that Kellogg was in touch with Herbert Kalmbach (President Nixon's personal lawyer) in reference to this desired appointment."

Winter-Berger says Kellogg wanted to become ambassador to Kenya. Instead, he wound up dealing with refugee affairs as a top official in Washington at the State Department.

When we reached Kellogg, he admitted that Winter-Berger had set up appointments with Ford and that he had been in contact with Kalmbach about a diplomatic job. But he denied he contributed $125,000. He told us the total was only $28,000 and that it was not given at either Winter-Berger's or Ford's request.

The ex-wheeler dealer swore that at the 1969 Inaugural, "Ford supplied an official sticker for the private limousine" of a big GOP contributor "in return for a $500 contribution to the Republican Congressional Boosters Committee." And for another $500 to the same committee, Winter-Berger said, Ford got the contributor's grand-nephew "a job as a congressional intern."

In the affidavit, Winter-Berger also dealt fully for the first time with his recollection of Ford's visit to New York psychotherapist Dr. Arnold Hutschnecker, who once counseled Richard Nixon. Ford has insisted to us he saw Hutschnecker for only 15 minutes and never visited with him again. But Winter-Berger's affidavit takes issue: "I went into Dr. Hutschnecker's office and introduced him to Gerald Ford," the affidavit said. Winter-Berger maintained he walked a half-block to his own home and prepared "my own lunch which consisted of a hamburger which was broiled in a preheated oven. This took me approximately 40 minutes."

Winter-Berger then went back and waited in a rented limousine for Ford for 10 to 15 minutes, meaning that "Ford was with Hutschnecker for more than an hour." Winter-Berger swore that "about eight or nine months later," Hutschnecker told him he had met with Ford again and that Ford later confirmed this subsequent meeting to Winter-Berger.

Asked Nixon

Winter-Berger recounts that when he first recommended Hutschnecker to Ford, the lobbyist also mentioned that President Nixon had seen the doctor. "About 10 days later," swore Winter-Berger, "much to my surprise, (Ford) brought it up and said he had asked Dick (Nixon) and that Dick said he was a very good doctor. (Ford) then asked me to . . . set up an appointment with Dr. Hutschnecker."

While Ford steered clear of pocketing contributions, he was not above letting lobbyists give gifts to his staffers. Winter-Berger asserted. "One Christmas, I asked Mr. Ford if it was all right with him if I gave some (gifts) to his staff. He said he didn't mind, as long as I didn't give them in the office."

Winter-Berger said he gave three of Ford's aides wallets, each with $100 bills in them. Two of the staffers thanked him in writing, one did it personally.

He said, "Ford never did any favor for me unless I indicated that in some way or manner, by contributions or other means, the Republican party would benefit."

Dinner tickets

Once, said Winter-Berger, "I slipped an envelope which contained $2,000 across his desk. He refused it, with the suggestion that if I wanted to do him a favor, I could buy some tickets to a dinner that was being given in his honor in Grand Rapids at which Richard Nixon was the honored speaker. I bought five tickets (for) $500."

Summing up, Winter-Berger said "I regarded myself as a personal friend of Gerald Ford's." He was making the affidavit, he said, to try to get his side of the Ford controversy on the record. He said he is willing to repeat his story under oath if called before the Senate Rules Committee or the House Judiciary Committee, both considering Ford's nomination.

FOOTNOTE: Through a spokesman, Ford told us Winter-Berger's charges about a loan of $15,000 were "a categorical lie." Ford also emphatically denied arranging any $125,000 in contributions.

The House minority leader denied with equal vigor that he ever pushed for campaign contributions to the GOP in return for giving out an Inaugural sticker or finding a job for a youth. "I wouldn't be so crude as to enter into a quid pro quo arrangement of that kind," Ford stated. Ford's aide, Mildred Leonard, disputed the alleged $100 gift, saying it is "a complete lie. He gave us the billfold and that's all."

Gossip for today

As the old saying goes: "Let he that is without sin cast the first stone." Or to put it another way: Why complain? Who says you have to be a Political Big Wig to be able to cut down materially on your income tax payments? Maybe you don't have important papers to donate to some library or museum in order to list them as deductions, but in your own small way, if you are endowed with a bit of that same finagling, ingenuity with which most politicians are blessed, you can accomplish much the same thing.

There was this fellow in Maine, for example, who had a garage he wanted demolished in order to make room for a new building on the same site. The cost of tearing it down would have amounted to $500. However, he donated that garage as an item for a YWCA charity garage sale. A buyer purchased it for moving costs plus $75 which went to the YWCA. In that manner the original garage owner saved a $50 demolition bill and was also able to take a $75 deduction for a charitable gift.

Kissinger: Heads or tails we win

To those who don't understand the mind of Henry Kissinger it is inconceivable that the U.S. continues to pursue detente with the Soviet Union while knowing that Russia's heavy arms shipments to the Mideast early this fall made the renewal of Arab-Israeli fighting inevitable.

These critics are appalled by the thought of serious talks with a country which so mistreats its writers and scientists, Jews and other minorities, and which continues to spur local wars when they appear advantageous.

But Kissinger believes that these critics are mistaken in their assessment of U.S. Soviet relations.

Dr. Kissinger's thesis is that the less faith the Russians show, the harsher their regime, the more militaristic and adventure-some their policies, the greater is the need for an American approach to Moscow, providing we remember just what we're up against.

Mutual interest for both sides

Even considering the worst about Leonid Brezhnev and his colleagues (and Kissinger agrees with former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on what type of men rule Russia), there are areas—disarmament, trade, the development of resources and the prevention of confrontation and nuclear war—where it is in both the Soviet and U.S. interest to come to mutual understandings.

In Kissinger's view, it is not even necessary to assume the men in the Kremlin will keep their agreements in the future.

The objective is to exploit those areas which are of so much advantage to the Soviets (and to ourselves) that the Kremlin will have no incentive to default. Either workable agreements can be reached in some areas or they can't. Either the Soviets will keep their agreements or they won't. If agreement can be reached—and if Moscow does hold to its word even somewhat—there may be a net gain.

If the Kremlin repeatedly breaks faith, then there is a gain in that the people of the United States and the West will see clearly what they're up against. Without this agreement there can be no meaningful defense against direct and indirect Soviet aggression.

Kissinger is convinced it is important for us to be conciliatory if Soviet leaders are prepared to negotiate seriously. But it is no less crucial that we force them to bear the onus for their failure to accept responsible proposals. The free world, Kissinger believes, requires an attitude of conciliation for its very cohesion. It cannot be asked to wait rigidly in the face of mounting tensions without making an effort to break the deadlock.

Necessity to learn first hand

That is, if we are to live in a world of Soviet terror and Moscow-induced uncertainty, then we must learn this now and first hand. And we can only know this by negotiating with the Russians, learning how far they will move toward agreement and discovering how far they go in breaking their word.

Kissinger has been highly critical of John Foster Dulles' performance as Secretary of State—not because Dulles was suspicious of the men in the Kremlin, but because Dulles, having a correct interpretation of Communist methods and motives, let the Russians outmaneuver him.

By refusing to negotiate, Kissinger believes, Dulles allowed the Russians to make all the peace proposals, which we rejected. These rejections made many believe the Russians wanted peace while we wanted only military containment.

Hitting criminals in pocketbook

Crime must not pay! J. Paul Getty sounded callous when he refused to ransom his grandson, but said if he did all his grandchildren would be in constant danger.

Latin America's epidemic of kidnappings of business executives and diplomats for cash ransom demonstrates this chain reaction.

Some of us believe that in most crimes the criminals should not be required to pay some vague "debt to society" by being locked up for X number of years. Instead they should be forced to pay cash compensation to the victims of their crimes, however long it takes them to work it out.

That idea is gathering momentum. Two students set two fires at Valley Forge Military Academy in 1971. They said they objected to school policy. Also it is known that they'd spent the earlier part of that night drinking wine and smoking pot.

Then they bought two cans of gasoline and set two fires which damaged their school $763,000 worth! A federal judge has ordered those boys to pay those damages. Working out that debt should keep those two out of mischief for a very long time.

With today's federal scrutiny of individuals, a fugitive can still run but it's getting very hard to hide. What with Social Security numbers and draft-board records and drivers' license records and military fingerprints and such, we really don't have to put civil criminals behind bars any more to keep track of them.

who has to be locked up, most people who steal from people, banks, insurance companies or whatever could remain employed at whatever work they do while they pay back the people from whom they stole.

It might even be a greater deterrent to the rapist to have to compensate his victim with a substantial sum of cash. The state of Illinois has under consideration four separate bills for compensating the victims of crimes.

The U.S. Senate has voted government compensation for the victims of crimes and their families. But, as usual, when government seeks a legislative solution it ends up punishing the wrong people. Government compensation means taxpayers are further victimized; that taxpayers have to make up what the stealers stole.

What I'm suggesting, instead, is for the criminals to have to pay for their crimes — however innovative that idea may sound in the 20th century.

Awhile back a Minneapolis judge and a Phoenix judge had before them physicians who had evaded income taxes. In each case, the Solomon-image judges decreed that those men should not go to prison, but should be left free to practice medicine and pay those back taxes — after first working for nothing in hospital charity wards for six months. Doesn't that make more sense?

Traffic referee reroutes cases, eases West End court congestion

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

ONTARIO — Some of these days they are going to get you. And when they do, a traffic officer is going to walk up to your car and hand you a citation.

It's bound to happen, since most drivers at one time or another get cited. And when it does, the motorist has the duty of going to court to face judgment. This could mean paying a court clerk the fine or going before a judge to plead his case.

Until recently, a motorist cited in San Bernardino County had to take off work if he wanted to appear before a judge to state "What really happened." The explanation would have to be brief because of the crowded court agenda. Judges were hearing traffic cases each morning before the start of their regular court calendar which included criminal arraignments and trials.

Court officials, however, made a change on July 2 which allowed judges to get started earlier on their trials and also provided motorists an opportunity to tell their story without having to go to trial.

The change involved the creation of a traffic court and the appointment of a traffic referee.

Selected as referee was Ben Burrell, judge of the Chino Justice Court and a former California Highway Patrol officer. Burrell resigned as Chino's judge to take the new assignment.

He now spends each Monday and Tuesday in the San Bernardino Municipal Court and each Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Ontario Municipal Court.

In addition to day sessions, Burrell also conducts night sessions each Wednesday for those who can't get off work during the day.

The referee has the authority to hold arraignments on traffic matters, accept pleas, assess penalties and assess fines.

But most important, he is able to give more attention to each motorist. "In most cases, all a person wants to do is to tell what happened," said Rudolph Corona, court coordinator. "Most don't want a trial but just a chance to talk to the judge."

When regular judges were hearing these matters, the pressure of time forced them to set the matters for trial when a cited motorist wanted to give a lengthy explanation, he added.

"In most cases a person will plead guilty, with an explanation. The explanation gives the referee a clearer picture of what happened. It may or may not have an influence on the amount of the fine."

Corona has praise for the traffic referee program. "It helps the judges get to trial quicker on serious matters, which means less delay for attorneys and juries."

The traffic referee hears from 80 to 100 cases per day, and with the growing number of vehicles and licensed drivers, the caseload is bound to increase, he noted.

"Burrell is a very professional person who has brought a lot of credit to the court," said Corona. "And the people are getting a lot of good service from that court."

During a recent night session, a steady flow of motorists passed through the traffic court.

They ranged from a mother who needed her smoking car for work, to a young man cited numerous times for a loud muffler on his motorcycle.

One man clocked at 85 miles an hour on the freeway protested that vehicles in other lanes were going faster than he.

A woman whose car has a loud muffler said the condition existed when she purchased the auto from a Chino auto agency.

A young man who spoke no English was charged with possession of an alcoholic beverage by a minor. A woman who claimed ownership of the car, however, said the beer belonged to her. Rather than going to a court trial, the youth pleaded guilty, which meant automatic suspension of his driver's license.

In some cases where motorists were unable to post bail or pay a fine, Burrell would extend payment from one to three weeks.

"Most traffic infractions which come to this court are probably speeding," said Burrell. "The mechanical defects have a wide variety. They range from defective horns to loud mufflers."

In minor traffic violations, motorists are offered a chance to attend a driver's improvement school. Following completion, the citation is dismissed.

"Everyone is entitled to attend the school once," said Burrell.

In the more serious violations, the motorist may be ordered to attend the school in addition to paying a fine. For these infractions, the citation is not dismissed.

On mechanical defects, the amount of fine may be reduced with corrections, said Burrell.

"The court can't force anyone to fix anything," he explained. "But the amount of fine may be doubled each time that defect is cited."

Burrell hopes his job as traffic referee will help alleviate traffic accidents on the streets, highways and freeways.

"The purpose of traffic enforcement is to make the roadways safe for those who want to drive safe. Those who can't comply with the rules should not be entitled to drive," he said.

NEXT CASE, PLEASE

Ben Burrell, traffic referee at Ontario Municipal Court, takes a break between traffic cases to chat with Louise Ortega, deputy marshal. Burrell handles about 100 cases a day.

County okays Kaiser pollution control plan

FONTANA (CNA) — The San Bernardino County Air Pollution Control Board has approved Kaiser Steel Co.'s schedule for compliance with county air pollution standards although control facilities for the open hearth shop and oxygen steel shop won't be completed until December of 1975.

This is five months after the date set by Congress as the deadline for achieving maximum standards, officials noted.

Although receiving the county's approval, Kaiser officials must now face the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) which will enforce Congress's Clean Air Act.

"I don't think we would be able to shut down Kaiser," said Irwin Karp, EPA attorney, in addressing the county control board. But just what action EPA will take against Kaiser he couldn't say.

"The dates you pick are up to you, but anything beyond July 15, 1974, we will not be able to approve because of the Clean Air Act," he added.

Board members Dr. Joseph S. Hayhurst and Joseph E. Bonadiman Sr. expressed their concern that board action approving Kaiser's schedule beyond July, 1975 would be out of the realm of the law. Deputy County Counsel Alan Marks assured them they would not be liable for accepting the date as Kaiser requested.

Richard Pehl, superintendent of engineering at the Fontana mill, said that the package control programs, prompted by EPA's demand for a specific compliance schedule, has put a burden on the engineering department requiring outside help. "Our schedule is based on experience not specific engineering fact," he said. Kaiser says it is having to design many of its own control system, since the steel industry has never before had to use such devices.

"We'll take out chances with EPA," Kaiser attorney Donald W. Jordan said.

The board refused to approve a control program for tapping and charging of the open hearth furnace, leaving issue unresolved. County air pollution control officials said they will just keep writing citations as before, but added that they are having discussions with Kaiser for an open-hearth control program.

Other compliance schedules within the federal time schedule approved by the board included controls for coke-oven stacks, coke-oven smoke emissions, open-hearth operations, oxygen furnaces, and scrap-metal processing.

Kaiser's Thursday hearing was the first in which a member of the public testified. Luey Diaz, a Kaiser coke oven heater helper, told the board he thought some of Kaiser's problems could be solved if management and labor would get together to try to solve their problems. "If the ovens were patched properly a lot of emissions could be solved," he said. He also asked if the county had people observing Kaiser during the night as well as in the day.

J. A. Stuart, APC chief enforcement officer, replied that observation men were at Kaiser from 4:30 a.m. until 10 p.m. every day.

Board chairman E. E. Accomazzo pointed out to Diaz Kaiser's latest proposal for smoke management teams which are supposed to help management communicate with labor about pollution. "That's the first time I've heard about the management teams," Diaz said. Dr. Hayhurst commended Diaz coming to the hearing and presenting the board with a third opinion in the Kaiser case.

Donohue quits as real champ

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Correspondent

RIVERSIDE — "Captain Nice" went out a winner Sunday.

Perhaps more importantly, he went out with all the style, grace, and class one would expect of him.

As a standing room only Riverside International Raceway press room crowd listened on late Sunday afternoon, Mark Donohue, the man who has mastered such diverse events as the Indy 500 and Can-Am road racing, quietly announced his decision to retire from active driving duties to devote full-time attention to racing machine engineering and design.

"It's been a wonderful experience," Donohue told reporters, "but I'm getting older and I don't think I'm getting any better. It's time that I look for something else to do."

Retirement was the climax of a Hollywood-type day of triumph for Donohue. Entered in a total of three races for the afternoon, Donohue swept everything to complete and almost total domination of the Times Grand Prix International Race of Champions weekend at Riverside.

All in all, Donohue won four of five races he started during the two days, and the only time he was denied access to Winner's Circle, he had started from the rear of the field and dropped out early with mechanical problems.

All three Sunday victories were almost absurdly easy for the 37-year-old Brown University graduate.

He first piloted the blue and yellow striped Penske Porsche to a 24.16 second victory over Brian Redman in the Grand Prix Sprint qualifying race. An hour later, he grabbed his second victory in the IROC with 2.80-second margin over Bobby Unser.

But Donohue saved the biggest show of all for the main event.

By the end of the 127-mile, 49-lap Times Grand Prix, only one car was on the same lap, the Kendall Porsche driven by Hurley Haywood, and it was falling off the pace.

Donohue broke for the lead at the drop of the green, and never looked back. So completely and obviously was Donohue in control of the event that by Lap 10, a substantial portion of the crowd of 65,000 was already bumper-to-bumper on the Raceway access roads heading for the exit.

About the only race was an early struggle between Redman and Jody Scheckter for second that evaporated on lap 17 when Scheckter's Vasek Polak Porsche went to the pits with body problems. On lap 19, Scheckter's car vanished to the garage out of the race.

And it was in the midst of this atmosphere of conquest that Donohue dropped his post-race bombshell.

"I can't say it was any one thing that caused me to decide," he related. "It's just something everybody has to face some time. I don't do it with any malice, but with heartache and regret."

Donohue will continue working for the man who has employed him the past several years, Roger Penske, a former Times G.P. winner himself.

Actually, Donohue is committed to drive one more race before he retires for good. He will complete the IROC series next January at Daytona.

Surprisingly, Donohue isn't the points leader in the series. George Follmer, who won Saturday's second race, shares that honor with Unser at 29 points. Donohue is tied with Peter Revson at 25 points. David Pearson and A. J. Foyt will also be on hand at Daytona.

Revson, it was also announced, will take over Donohue's spot for the Penske team at Indianapolis next May.

For Heisman Trophy

Johnson is contender

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Kermit Johnson, UCLA's first 2,000-yard rusher, has put it on the line.

"If you were to ask me if I feel I deserve consideration for the Heisman Trophy," the quiet-spoken Bruin senior said, "my answer would be yes. I've earned consideration and I expect to get it."

Because of a bad ankle, Johnson was used sparingly Saturday in a 61-21 blitz of California.

He carried the ball 12 times for 60 yards and his 10th touchdown, giving him 2,052 yards in three varsity seasons.

Johnson became the Bruins' all-time leading rusher the previous weekend at Washington State, breaking the late Kenny Washington's record.

"Breaking the record is what I'll remember," he said. "Two thousand doesn't mean that much. It will be a new record every week now."

Returning to the starting lineup after losing his quarterback's job to sophomore John Sciarra for three weeks, Mark Harmon accounted for 185 of the Bruins' 545 yards.

"We definitely deserve to be in the top 10," said the son of ex-Michigan great Tom Harmon.

Ranked 13th in the nation last week, the Bruins registered their sixth straight victory since their opening season loss at Nebraska and made their Pacific-8 record 3-0. It was the fourth time they've scored more than 50 points this season and the second time they've broken 60 points.

Jimmy Allen, a senior cornerback, made the big play. He intercepted a Vince Ferragamo pass on the goal line and sprinted 100 yards for a TD.

"I want people to know we have a helluva defense, too," he smiled.

Pepper Rodgers, the UCLA coach, wanted to talk about his offensive line.

"They did an outstanding job of controlling the game," he said. "It was a very productive day for them."

Sciarra, who has a bad back, got in against Cal only briefly and is doubtful for the Bruins' game here Saturday against Washington.

James McAlister, UCLA's No. 1 fullback who has a strained knee, also is expected to sit out the Washington contest. He has been out two weeks.

Gerald Peeke, a nose guard, suffered a slight shoulder separation against Cal.

L.A. tumbles in 'unbeaten' battle, 10-9

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The play came with 4:43 left in the game and was typical of what the Minnesota Vikings have been doing to opponents all season.

Los Angeles trailed by one point. It was third down at the Minnesota 37 and Ram quarterback John Hadl went back to pass. A completion could set up David Ray for a possible game-winning field goal.

In streaked Viking linebacker Jeff Siemon. He chased Hadl and slammed him down for a 15-yard loss. The scoring threat was dead and the Vikings hung on to win 10-9.

Siemon's one-man blitz was just one of the timely defensive plays by the Vikings in the Sunday victory which left them with the only perfect record in the National Football League. The Rams had been the only other unbeaten team.

The Vikings also picked off two Hadl passes, blocked a field goal attempt, held the league's leading receiver, Harold Jackson, to just 31 yards and refused to allow one of football's best offenses a single touchdown. The Minnesota defense has allowed just seven TDs in six games.

Minnesota has won 12 straight, counting exhibitions, and has a 7-0 record and a stunning four-game lead atop the National Football Conference's Central Division at the season's halfway point. The Rams are 6-1.

"I guess," said Vikings Coach Bud Grant, "you can say we make the big plays when we have to. It was our best game all year, although it may not show statistically."

Grant said Siemon's blitz was the key play of the game.

"We had to have it to keep them out of field goal range," he said. "We have a veteran defensive unit and veteran players really respond."

Hadl, the NFL's leading quarterback, said there were no excuses to make.

"They just whipped us. They outexecuted us. We never had any decent field position, and that's to their credit."

All the scoring the Vikings needed came in the first half—a 15-yard field goal by Fred Cox and a nine-yard touchdown pass from Fran Tarkenton to rookie running back Chuck Foreman.

Los Angeles got field goals of 30, 35 and 47 yards from Ray, all after Minnesota had run up a 10-0 lead.

The only time Hadl launched a bomb to the speedy Jackson, Nate Wright intercepted by wrestling the ball away while both players were in the air.

Jeff Wright also picked off a Hadl pass and the blocked field goal was the work of 6-foot-6 defensive end Carl Eller.

Tarkenton passed for 91 yards, hitting 8-of-16. Hadl was 10-for-20 for only 87 yards. Minnesota had a 253-157 advantage in total yardage.

Ho Hum, Lakers defeat Portland

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

INGLEWOOD — Going into Sunday night's basketball game at the Forum, the Portland Trail Blazers had never beaten the Lakers in 16 regular season games.

As if the handicap of playing the defending Pacific Division Champions in Los Angeles wasn't enough, the Blazers had to go without Sidney Wicks, their second leading scorer (20.6 points per game) and rebounder (54 in six games).

It came as no great surprise then that the Lakers defeated the visitors 111-98. But the fact that Portland hung in and the Lakers weren't able to put the Trail Blazers away until the last five minutes of the contest.

Fortunately, Gail Goodrich chose this particular night to score a career high 49 points, 22 in the first half and 27 in the second. For the game, Goodrich connected on 18 of 28 field goal attempts and 13 of 13 free throw attempts.

Then there was center Elmore Smith who blocked 17 Portland shots, grabbed 16 rebounds and scored 12 points.

"We moved the ball well tonight. I got a lot of good picks from the guys and I had a lot of good shots," Goodrich explained. "I don't think there was any particular reason why I scored so much. Right now I think the other players are looking for Jerry (West) and I right now, but that will even out over the season."

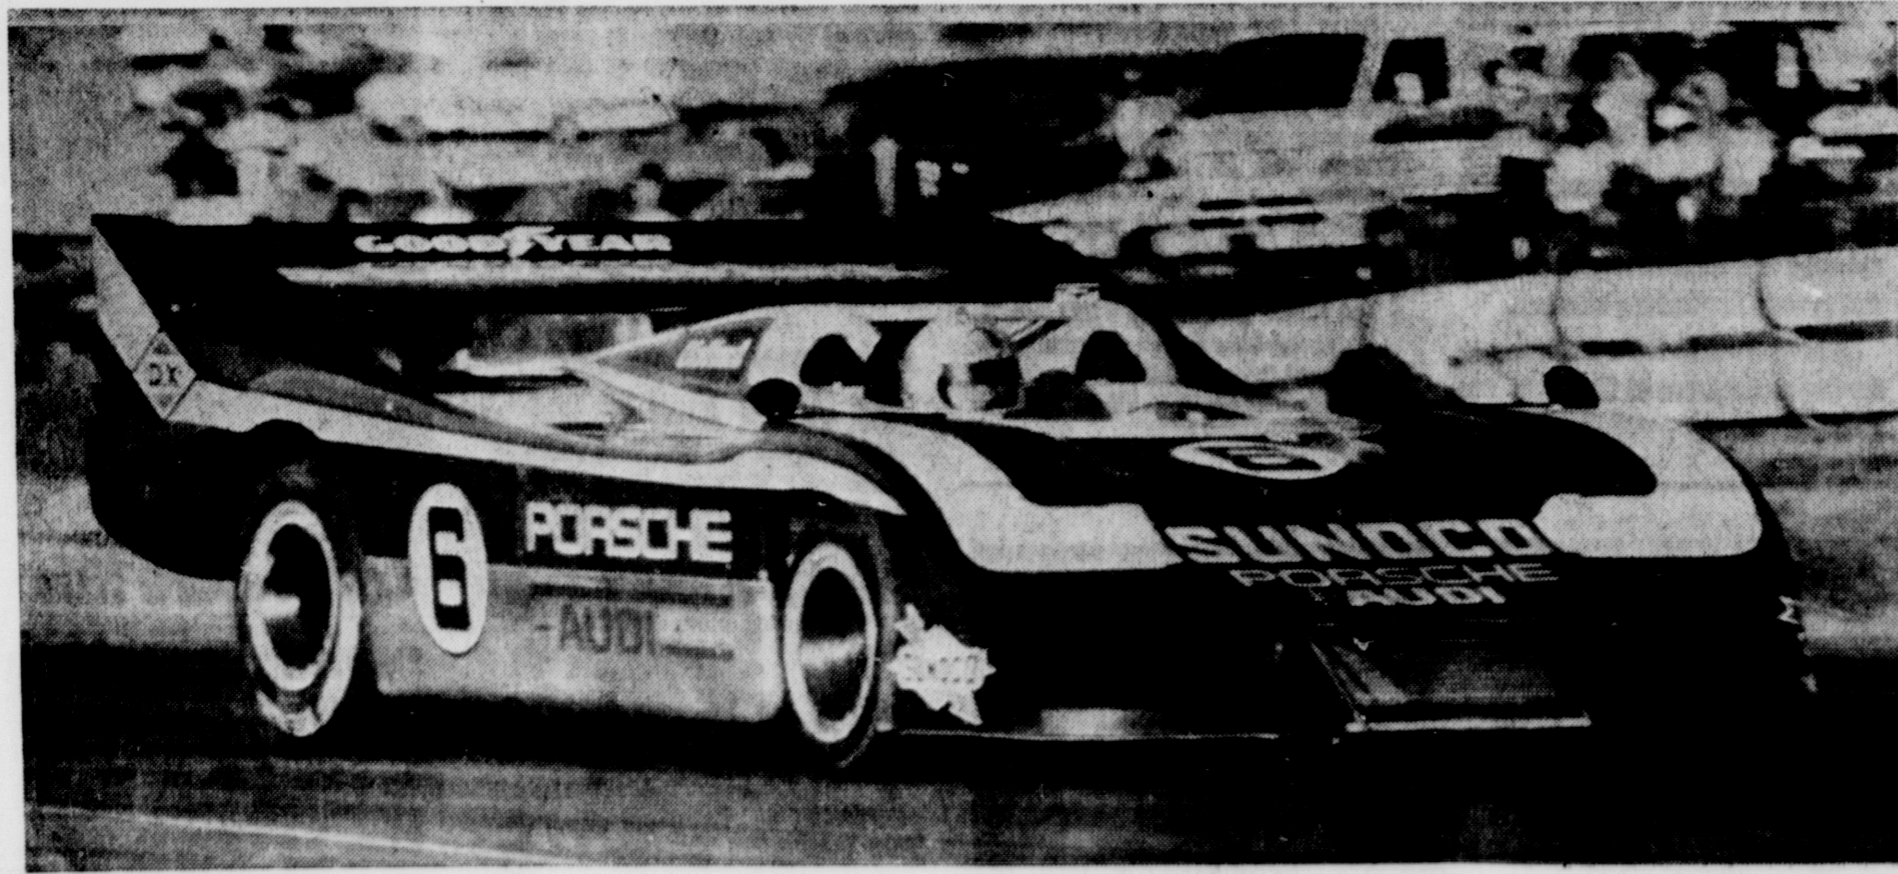

West, who almost didn't play this season due to a contract dispute, scored 24 points and was credited with 14 assists.

"That just confirms why I think Jerry West is the best defensive guard as well as best all around player in the league," commented coach Bill Sharman. "I should say of all time," he added.

Sharman wouldn't go along with the idea that his team should have had an easy time of it.

"Portland may be the most improved team in the league," he said. "I think they have a real good stab at

Sahara champ gets help

Mahaffey thanks elders

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—John Mahaffey, a devotee of physical conditioning, gives a vote of thanks to a pair of older pros, Ben Hogan and Gary Player, for his first PGA tournament win.

Mahaffey, 25, the 1970 NCAA golf titlist when he played for the University of Houston, turned pro in 1971 and everyone predicted a great future.

It wasn't until Sunday, however, that he got his first victory and won $27,000 in the $125,000 Sahara Invitational. He shot 68-66-69-68—271, 13 under par for the Sahara-Nevada Country Club course. His margin of victory was three strokes.

Hogan has helped him with his game and Player has advised him on exercise.

The pros enjoyed ideal golfing weather with the temperature in the mid-70s and hardly a breath of wind for four days.

Dave Eichelberger of Waco, Tex., took second money of $15,390 with 64-274. His 64 tied a course record set Friday by Australia's David Graham. Mike Hill, Jackson, Mich., also shot a fine 64 and had a 276 total for a tie for fifth.

Jim Ferriell, Louisville, Ky., (67) and Allen Miller, Pensacola, Fla., (68) tied for third at 275, good for $7,965 each. Hill tied with Lou Graham, (73) and Larry Ziegler (72) at 276 and each collected $4,905.

Arnold Palmer was never a real threat and shot 73-283 for a tie for 20th, winning $1,338.

Mahaffey's best previous finish was a fourth in the Kaiser International a week ago. Before that, he took three weeks off "just to get in physical shape."

He said he began running two miles a day, lifting weights to strengthen his wrists and forearms and laid off beer drinking.

"I'm going to continue running and no more beer," he said after his win.

McKay says Trojans have been looking back

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—"We seem to have been looking back and saying we were the national champions. That's exactly right. We were the national champions."

John McKay, the white-haired Southern California football coach, reflected on the Trojans' season Sunday.

"We blew any chance of another national championship in South Bend, Ind., Saturday," he said. "Now we have to look ahead to the Rose Bowl. There's no more looking back."

Beaten 23-14 at Notre Dame, the defending national champion Trojans now stand 5-1-1 after seven games. But they're 3-0 in the Pacific-8 and their Nov. 24 battle with UCLA figures to settle who will go to the Rose Bowl from the West.

"It'll be interesting to see how we take the loss," said McKay. "If our kids are like I think they are, they'll come back."

USC had a 23-game unbeaten string—21 wins and two ties—snapped by Notre Dame and McKay didn't have any alibis for his club's first defeat to the Fighting Irish since 1966.

"They were better than us and better prepared than us Saturday," he said. "It's over and they won."

Southern Cal figures to get well fast. The Trojans are at California Saturday to face a team that surrendered 61 points to UCLA during the weekend.

Bills, Simpson play KC tonight

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo Bills, whose offense is built completely around one man—O.J. Simpson—and the Kansas City Chiefs, with a defense capable of stopping him, clash tonight in the first Monday night pro football game ever in Buffalo.

The surprising Bills, although coming off a 27-6 drubbing by Miami a week ago, are 4-2 and very much in contention for a wild card spot in the playoffs. The Chiefs are 3-2-1 and still in the running for the AFC Western Division title.

Simpson, keeping pace with

Jim Brown's all-time season rushing record of 1,863 yards, had 868 going into tonight's game and with a good night, could go over the 1,000-yard mark at the midpoint of the season.

He had the Bills' coaching staff worried when he suffered a sprained ankle in the Miami game after gaining only 55 yards. But Coach Lou Saban watched him work out Saturday morning in full dress for the first time since the Miami game and pronounced him fit.

"He looked good today," Saban said after the Bills' Saturday practice. "I say he's ready to start."

But Miami was the toughest defensive team that the Bills had played so far this season and the Dolphins stopped Simpson. The Chiefs, also a strong defensive club, could repeat that success.

MASASHI OZAKI fired an even par 72 Sunday in a day-long rain but profited from a three-stroke third round lead and won the $125,000 Tokai Classic International Open Golf Tournament by a one-stroke margin.

THE PITTSBURGH STEELERS' 20-13 win over the Cincinnati Bengals was expensive. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw suffered a partial shoulder separation and running back Frenchy Fuqua suffered a cracked collarbone. Both players will be out for an indefinite period.

PRESIDENT GARY DAVIDSON of the World Hockey Association will face an ultimatum, resign or be fired, today at a regular meeting of the league's Board of Trustees. Davidson is active in organizing a World Football League.

SHARON MILLER won her first golf tournament in nearly 200 attempts during eight years on the LPGA tour Sunday when she sank a five-foot birdie putt on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff to beat Judy Rankin for first place in the $27,000 Corpus Christi Civitan-Schlitz Open.

Gabe turns Eagles around

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Since Roman Gabriel left Los Angeles after last season, he has been saying it was only a matter of time until the Philadelphia Eagles turned into winners just like the Rams. He proved he can do it Sunday, scoring once and throwing for 203 yards and two touchdowns to direct the Eagles to a 30-16 upset for their first victory over the Dallas Cowboys since 1966.

Cowboy Coach Tom Landry, said the victory belonged to Gabriel for generating enthusiasm on an Eagle team with seven rookies in the starting lineup.

"The last I remember playing with guys this young was when I was a 10-year-old playing on the sandlots," quipped Gabriel. "Even though I am 33, I felt today like I was 21."

Gabriel's achievements came as no surprise to first-year coach Mike McCormack. He was happier with the rookies' performances.

"This one had to come," McCormack said. "It was one helluva outstanding beautiful football game. Both lines were blowing off the ball the way we've been trying to get them to do it since last July." After Gabriel built a 27-13 halftime lead with the help of a series of Dallas errors, he turned "conservative" in the second half while the Eagle defense stopped a comeback attempt by Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach.

The Eagles sacked Staubach with second-and-goal at the nine and Mike Clark kicked a 33-yard field goal for the Cowboys only score of the half. Safety Randy Logan intercepted Staubach at the Eagle 20 with eight minutes left, and linebacker Steve Zabel picked off a pass at the Eagle 33 with 29 seconds left.

Between the interceptions, Gabriel controlled the ball for six minutes enroute to a 32-yard field goal by Tom Dempsey, who earlier kicked three-pointers from seven and 35 yards.

Landry said the Cowboys have been inconsistent in compiling a 4-3 record at the midway point of the season.

"One week we're unbeatable, and the next week we're beatable," Landry said in recalling Cowboy problems.

Staubach, who threw touchdowns of eight and 14 yards to Otto Stowe and piled up 250 passing yards, said the Cowboy's failure to come up with important plays in Eagle territory in the second half ruined their chances.

Even though the Cowboys lost, they didn't lose any ground in the National Football Conference East race.

In an even bigger surprise, the Washington Redskins were shocked by the New Orleans Saints, 19-3, as Bill McClard kicked four field goals in his first appearance in a Saints uniform.

In other NFL games Sunday, Pittsburgh downed Cincinnati 20-13 but lost quarterback Terry Bradshaw and running back Frenchy Fuqua in the process. Detroit crushed Green Bay 34-0, Oakland beat Baltimore 34-21, Denver whipped the New York Jets 40-28, Atlanta stopped San Francisco 17-3, Chicago trounced Houston 35-14, St. Louis ripped the New York Giants 35-27, Miami defeated New England 30-14 and San Diego tied Cleveland 16-16. Kansas City is at Buffalo tonight.

McClard, signed this week to replace Happy Feller, kicked field goals of 45, 43, 30 and 37 yards and Archie Manning threw a nine-yard touchdown pass to Bill Butler. The young Saints' defense dropped Washington quarterbacks four times, made two interceptions and closed off the Redskins' running attack.

Terry Hanratty, entering the game when Bradshaw suffered a shoulder separation, threw a 51-yard TD pass to Ron Shanklin for the go-ahead score as the Steelers beat Cincinnati to take a two-game lead in the AFC Central Division. Bradshaw will be lost indefinitely while Fuqua, who broke his collarbone after scoring a touchdown, will be out four weeks.

Albie Taylor ran for 161 yards, scored one touchdown and set up another as the Lions crushed Green Bay. Taylor scored on a nine-yard run and Detroit's defense limited the Packers to only 68 yards total offense.

Ken Stabler threw two TD passes and set a percentage record by completing 25-of-29 passes to lead the Raiders over Baltimore. Stabler threw 27 yards to Mike Siani and nine to Bob Moore for scores as he broke the 85.7 percentage mark set by Washington's Sammy Baugh in 1945 by hitting 86.1 per cent.

Marty Domres had two TD passes for the Colts. Denver scored three TDs in a 1:36 span of the first period and then held off the Jets. Charley Johnson threw 15 yards to Gene Washington and 21 to Riley Odums and Leroy Mitchell returned an interception 40 yards for a 21-0 lead. Al Woodall brought the Jets to life in the second half with TD passes of 30 and 56 yards to Jerome Barkum.

Rookie Burgess Owens has an 82-yard kickoff return for a Jet TD while sub quarterback Steve Ramsey threw a 76-yard TD pass to Haven Moses for Denver. Bob Berry threw 51 and 22 yard TD passes to Ken Burrow as the Falcons beat San Francisco and linebacker Dick Butkus scored the first touchdown of his nine-year career by recovering a fumble in the end zone in Chicago's rout of the Oilers.

Jim Hart threw four TD passes—three of them to Mel Gray—as the Cardinals overwhelmed the Giants. Hart hit Gray on TD passes of 55, 41 and 10 yards and connected with Walker Gillette on a 48-yard scoring play. Garo Yepremian kicked three field goals and Mercury Morris and Larry Csonka ran for TDs as the Dolphins rallied to beat New England and Ray Werschling's third field goal of the game, a 16-yarder with 30 seconds left, lifted San Diego to a tie with Cleveland.

Announcing a brand-new 2-year enlistment idea.

If 3 or 4 years in the service is more than you can afford to give right now, consider the Army's new 2-year enlistment idea. It's an idea with a choice. You can choose job-training from a wide range of job-training courses. Or you can choose to serve in Europe. Either way, you get the same total benefits package as with a longer enlistment. Including a new starting salary of $326.10 a month, with a raise to $363.30 in just four months. Talk it over with your local Army Representative. He's listed in the Yellow Pages under "Recruiting." Or call us at 800-243-6000, toll free.

Countdown for Skylab rolls along

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) —The countdown for launching the last crew of Skylab astronauts rolled along smoothly today toward a Nov. 10 firing date on a mission that could break the space flight endurance record by more than three weeks.

Officials were looking first to a rehearsal launch Friday when the clock was to be turned back to a point 34 hours before launch and started again late next week.

Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue, the all rookie crew of Skylab 3, were continuing their training at the Johnson Space Center in Houston this week for the mission that might last more than 12 weeks.

The space station pilots have been given approval for at least a 60-day voyage aboard the 86-ton lab. If their health is good, they are doing productive work and have rationed their food properly, they may get the okay week by week after that to stay 85 days. The Skylab 2 crew holds the current time-in-space record of 59 days.

MARSHFIELD, Vt. (UPI) —In 1972, Claude Savoie's year-long garage sale peddled off 24,000 bird feeders, 1,500 doll cradles and hundreds and hundreds of candle holders, tables, hutches, dry sinks, rocking horses, lazy susans and other handmade crafts.

Savoie is among Vermont's thousands of highly skilled craftsmen, but he's one of only a few who makes his entire living at his trade—really a hobby.

Early each morning, Savoie steps out his door and goes to work—85 feet away in an old barn converted into a wood-working shop. The day often starts at 5 a.m. because he says that is when the real buyers—many of them tourists—are around.

"I've opened my doors at 6 and catch a lot of business between 6 a.m. and 10 a.m. You have to catch 'em" (potential customers driving by) before they get to the thru-way."

Savoie's garage sale is just that. When the family bought a rural house outside Marshfield, they made the garage into a showroom, pulling the big door up in the summer and installing a temporary wall with a large built-in display window during colder months.

Born in Barre, Vt., Savoie became a tool and die maker in Hartford, Conn. Eventually, his evening and weekend hobby of woodworking became so absorbing he quit his job and moved back to the Green Mountain State. During his two years on Vermont Rt. 2, Savoie has come to know and understand the road well enough to build up a thriving three-man business. He's kept it at that level, though, because to do otherwise "would defeat the whole purpose." When customers—an average of 65 cars a day—pull into his driveway to check over the hardwood tables, rockers and custombuilt cabinetry, Savoie keeps his back to the house and his eyes on the road to survey the day's potential market. "People came here all the way from Chicago this summer just to buy one of our shelves," he said. They'd seen it pictured in a crafts catalogue where Savoie does virtually his only advertising. Savoie specializes in antique reproductions, but he's also a man who keeps up with the times.

When the ornate State House in Montpelier needed furnishings to fit in with its authentic Early American decor, officials called on Savoie to apply his self-taught skills. Ski lodges, which now dot Vermont mountainsides, have commissioned many items from Savoie.

"You know," he said, "it's strictly an advantage for us to operate the way we do. We don't have to have an expensive shop downtown; we don't have to have big signs; we don't have to join associations. There aren't any traffic problems and no parking problems."

"And when it's slow, I can sneak in the house and play with the kids."

Faster breast tumor warning discovered

CHICAGO (UPI) —A Philadelphia pathologist reported today that a procedure for obtaining specimens of suspicious masses in breasts allows a woman to know her condition within an hour.

Dr. Tilde S. Kline, associate pathologist at Lankenau Hospital in Philadelphia, told the joint meeting of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists and College of American Pathologists the procedure involves using a thick needle such as the one used to obtain blood samples.

She said the needle is inserted into the abnormal area of the breast and a sample withdrawn by means of suction. The sample can then be examined within an hour and the woman can be told whether the mass is malignant or benign.

Kline said a quick diagnosis immediately relieves the patient's anxiety if the sample is benign, and if the sample proves to be malignant, the patient can be psychologically prepared for both the necessary surgery and post-operative recovery.

The needle procedure was first reported used in studying breast tumors almost 50 years ago, she said, but has not been widely used in the United States.

Israeli joke

TEL AVIV (UPI) —Based on the widespread contention that the United States compelled Israel to accept the cease-fire and permit the resupply of the surrounded Egyptian 3rd Army, a new joke is making the rounds in Israel:

"Godfather America made us an offer we couldn't refuse."

A man to remember to Houston.

Pilots like Ted will fly you there more times a day than any other airline. 12.

When you're an airline of our size and reputation, pilots like Ted Rutherford seek you out. He came to Continental 12 years ago. Since then he's flown more than 2 million miles. And covered just about every route we serve. Thanks to people like Ted, and the way they do their jobs, we're the kind of airline passengers like and remember to fly again.

Along with great pilots, we also offer great performance. We hold the best on-time record* throughout 1972 and still lead through the first half of 1973.

We also offer the earliest departure (7:00 am), the latest departures, and an Economy fare ($9 less than Coach). Please, join us and experience what flying was meant to be.

For reservations, call your travel agent or Continental Airlines—the Proud Bird with the Golden Tail.

ROBBERS KILL TWO IN STORE

Pomona liquor shop owner, clerk victims

POMONA — A liquor store owner and his employee were shot to death Sunday afternoon here in a robbery which netted their killers about $100.

The bodies of Merle Marvin Paup, 63, Covina, owner of Plaza Liquors at 1785 N. Garey Ave., and clerk Herb Yount, 62, 210 Sherwood Place, were found lying behind the store counter shortly after 2 p.m.

MERLE M. PAUP

Paup, lying facedown, had been shot in the right ear. Yount, whose body was face up, had been shot in the right temple. Both were obviously dead when found.

Police are looking for two young men, possibly in their late teens, who were seen running from the liquor store. A woman, who had parked her car nearby, told officers she heard two shots and when she turned to look, she saw one youth run from the store, followed moments later by a second.

One was described as a Negro juvenile, 5 feet 5, medium build with long sideburns. He wore a dark navy watch cap and dark clothing. The other was about the same age, also wearing dark clothing.

Investigators theorized the slayings occurred in this manner:

The killers entered the store shortly after 2 and selected two bottles of cocktail mix from the cooler. They put them on the counter with a $5 bill in payment. When Paup opened the cash register, one pulled a pistol, probably a .22 caliber, and shot him without provocation. Then Yount was shot as he made a grab for a .38-caliber revolver beneath the counter.

Police found the cash register open, with blood on the drawer. The crumpled $5 bill was on the counter with the two bottles of mix. An audit of the cash register tape indicated that about $100 was missing.

The bodies were discovered by Michael E. Bettencord, 22, who had gone to the liquor store to buy beer. He said he entered, went to the cooler for the beer and took it to the counter. He noticed a package of cigarettes lying on the floor and when he bent down to pick it up, he saw the bodies behind the counter.

Both bodies were taken to the coroner's office in Los Angeles where autopsies were planned today.

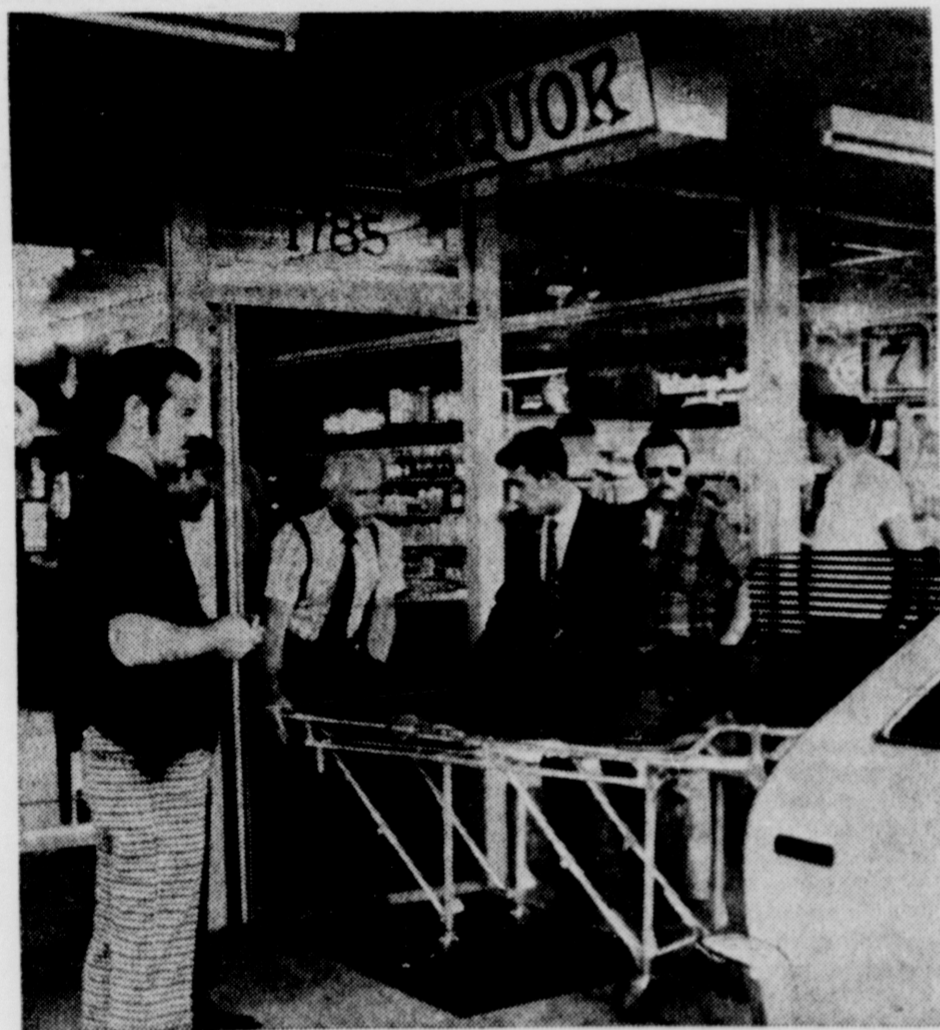

Paup had operated the liquor store since its opening almost exactly nine years ago. He opened it two years after retiring as general manager of Potlatch Forest's Mullen container division here.

KILLING SCENE

Part of the crowd drawn to the scene of a double slaying in a N. Garey Avenue liquor store Sunday is shown watching as police confer outside store. The store, Plaza Liquors, is located in shopping center across street from Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Police suspect two youths.

BODY REMOVED

Coroner's deputies are shown as they remove one of two victims slain in a liquor store hold-up Sunday afternoon.

Heat, strong winds sweep through area

A Santa Ana weather condition Sunday brought dry and warm weather with temperatures in the 90s throughout Pomona Valley.

The Indian Summer weather also gave threat today to strong gusty winds below canyon areas east of Ontario. Travelers' advisories have been posted today in areas of Etiwanda and Cajon Pass.

The strong winds are expected to decrease Tuesday but the warm weather will continue through Wednesday.

Small craft advisories were posted today from Point Conception to the Mexican border because of the wind conditions.

Mountain areas were clear and windy, with travelers' advisories posted in some areas because of the winds which gusted at 50 miles per hour at times.

Desert regions were also warm and windy today.

The National Weather Service office has forecast a high today of 91 degrees and a low tonight of 53 degrees. Normal temperatures for late October are for highs in the mid 70s and lows in the mid 40s.

FDA opposes easing rules regulating vitamin sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration testified today that proposed legislation to overturn an attempt by the FDA to regulate vitamins more closely would "promote widespread consumer fraud."

"All consumers will definitely be hurt by such legislation," Dr. Alexander Schmidt said. "Those who will benefit are the unscrupulous promoters who want to sell unproven substances or irrational combinations of substances as food supplements and who want to make unfounded claims to promote the sale of these articles."

Schmidt appeared at a congressional hearing on several bills to restrict the FDA's power to regulate vitamins.

If the intent of these bills would become law, we would, in effect, return to the 'patent medicine' abuses which prevailed at the turn of the century," Schmidt said.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., sponsor of one of the bills, said: "I strongly believe that those who do use these products, which no one has ever shown to be harmful in whatever quantities taken, should be freely allowed to continue doing so without being threatened with the extra trouble and unnecessary expense of having to get a medical prescription."

Crash kills Uplander, 20

UPLAND — A 20-year-old Upland man died here early Sunday morning in San Antonio Community Hospital from injuries he suffered when his automobile crashed on Mountain Avenue in San Antonio Heights.

The victim was Thomas Anthony

Diedrich, 20, of 1748 Coolcrest St.

According to the highway patrol, Diedrich was traveling south on Mountain Avenue at about 80 miles per hour when the vehicle went out of control on a curve, crossed the roadway, struck a raised asphalt berm, went over the berm into a dirt bank and turned over on its top.

The accident occurred at 1:15 a.m. Diedrich was believed to be returning from Mt. Baldy Village where he had left a girl friend, authorities said. The girl was not identified.

He died about three hours later. Funeral services are still pending at Stone Funeral Home.

The deceased was the son of Mrs. Ned Shetler of Upland, and was a student at Chaffey College.

Israelis let mercy convoy visit trapped Arab troops

By United Press International

Israeli forces in Egypt permitted a mercy convoy of food, water and medical supplies to cross its lines today for relief of the 20,000-man Egyptian 3rd Army trapped on the east bank of the Suez Canal, but its planes and guns shot down three Egyptian helicopters trying to reach the force in the middle of the night.

More men of a United Nations peace-keeping force moved out of Cairo today to form a buffer zone between the existing Israeli-Egyptian lines but a U.N. spokesman dodged the politically explosive question of a pullback by the two sides to the positions they held when the cease-fire went into effect Oct. 22.

Details of the agreement to let Egyptian trucks —with U.N. drivers —take supplies to the trapped Egyptian force were worked out in the first face-to-face meeting between Israeli and Arab officers in 17 years, a meeting Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir saw as a possible prelude to direct Arab-Israeli negotiations.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Ma'ariv said the United States was applying pressure to Israel to lift its encirclement of the Egyptian 3rd army whose surrender would threaten the survival of President Anwar Sadat's regime but that Israel is resisting the pressure.

Sadat dispatched an aide, acting Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi, to Washington today with a letter for President Nixon and possible talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. There was speculation in Cairo that the mission might be connected with forthcoming Mideast peace talks.

A possible clue to a future settlement came today from the well-informed Beirut newspaper An Nahar which said the United States and Russia had agreed on a broad plan calling for Israeli withdrawal from occupied lands but with a U.N. security force to safeguard its borders and establishment of a Palestinian state on the occupied west bank of the Jordan.

At a Cairo news conference this afternoon U.N. spokesman Col. Ake Bendrik said the job of the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF) was to move in between the lines the two sides now hold.

"What will happen after that, we have no idea," he said.

Asked if it was his mandate to establish the opposing lines as they existed on the night of Oct. 22 he replied:

"You are talking about political things. I am a soldier. As far as I know, we have to establish a situation just now. How they can establish the situation that existed on Oct. 22, I do not know. Nobody from the United Nations in Cairo knows about the situation on Oct. 22 because we were not in the field at that time. That is the big problem."

Bendrik said the convoy, which left Cairo Sunday, had been held up until this morning by the Israelis, who insisted all drivers be U.N. personnel. A Red Cross convoy carrying medical supplies to the 3rd Army was also blocked for the same reason, he said. The truce area was generally quiet and the only major action reported today was Israel's shooting down of the Egyptian helicopters over the east bank.

Contempt trial for Chicago Seven opens on quiet note

CHICAGO (UPI) —The contempt trial of the Chicago Seven and their two attorneys opened today on a quiet note in sharp contrast to the stormy court sessions of 1969-70 which led to the charges.

The defense indicated it would move to have the trial delayed because the government revealed last Friday it had a full tape recording of the original 4 1/2 month trial. But U.S. District Court Judge Edward T. Gignoux said any such request would be considered only after the government presented its case and if the tapes were offered as evidence.

U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson opened the proceedings telling the court that the government has "no passion, no goals to achieve."

"We are here quite simply because the charges represent a fundamental assault on the court's ability to try a case," Thompson said. "We have made every gesture to reduce the case to that fundamental proposition."

Thompson said the government had decided to press the contempt charges despite some fears within its own ranks that to do so would "reopen old wounds in the body politic at a time when the body politic can not sustain many more wounds."

All seven of the defendants and their attorneys were in court for the opening session. They greeted one another affectionately as they took their seats at the defense table. The only disruption occurred when Abbie Hoffman's small son, Amerika, 2, started to cry. Hoffman quickly took him from the courtroom and the two returned later all smiles.

Hectic week in D.C.

Impeachment inquiry, feud on prosecutor, veto fights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress and the President face a bumpy week, including a preliminary inquiry on impeachment, hearings on the special prosecutor dispute, more activity by the Senate Watergate committee, two veto fights and a vote on the Alaska pipeline.

While the Senate Judiciary Committee was looking into legislation to have an independent Watergate prosecutor appointed by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, the administration prepared to name its own special prosecutor, setting the stage for a struggle of wills between the executive and legislative branches.

The House Judiciary Committee meets Tuesday to adopt procedures for a possible later impeachment inquiry against the President, and to discuss how to go about hearings on the nomination of House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford to be vice president. Most Democrats leaders have said Congress should proceed with approval of Ford rather than wait until the Watergate tapes or special prosecutor disputes are settled.

The Watergate committee meets in closed session Tuesday to plan its course. Though the President has agreed to give nine Watergate tapes to the courts, an earlier "compromise" plan to let the committee have them after "verification" by Sen. John C. Stennis D-Miss., apparently has fallen through.

The House will vote Thursday whether to override the President's veto of a bill limiting his authority to send troops overseas to 90 days unless Congress approves a longer period.

Gurney wants prosecutor free from Nixon control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., the Senate Watergate committee member considered friendliest to President Nixon, today joined a growing demand for appointment of a new special prosecutor who would be free from administration control.

"I think above all, we've got to have a special prosecutor that is independent, because I don't think people are going to buy the idea of a special prosecutor...that is the President's man, as part of the administration prosecuting the administration," Gurney said.

Gurney's comments came as the Senate Judiciary Committee prepared to begin hearings on the fast developing battle over the prosecutor's role and the firing of Archibald Cox as prosecutor.

The start of the hearings was delayed from this morning until the afternoon because a Capitol policeman suffered a heart attack at the hearing room.

Cox, who said Sunday Congress should establish an independent Watergate prosecutor by statute and should legislate out of existence any new special prosecutor named by the administration, was to be the committee's first witness.

Gurney said he felt the prosecutor could be named by the President or Acting Attorney General Robert H. Bork but said there should be an agreement that "he would be totally independent and that he could not be fired without consent of Congress."

He made the comments on the CBS-TV Morning News program.

Another Nixon supporter, former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, said in Austin, Tex., Sunday that the firing of Cox was a "healthy thing" but said "the President owes the country a better explanation for his actions than we got."

Bork, who hinted in a weekend interview that he may resign if the new prosecutor's independence was interfered with, has been instructed by Nixon to name a new special prosecutor to take over the Watergate investigation.

Middle East crisis real, solon admits

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said Sunday night President Nixon did not exaggerate the Middle East crisis last week in an attempt to divert public attention from Watergate-related issues.

Speaking to about 600 persons at Temple Adath Yeshurun, Baker, vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, said President Nixon's response to last week's Middle East crisis "prevented the annihilation of the Israeli nation."

"There was a real, deadly threat of massive intervention by the Soviet Union in the Middle East. It was a threat to the security of Israel and the United States itself," he said.

Baker, who said he had urged the White House to declassify as soon as possible documents dealing with U.S.-Soviet negotiations in the recent conflict, defended the President against charges he had overemphasized the situation to divert attention from his Watergate problems.

"The Middle East crisis was not contrived for domestic diversion," he said.

Baker called for the appointment of a new special prosecutor, with full independence from the executive branch, to succeed the fired Archibald Cox.

"It is not enough at this point to have a special prosecutor appointed by the President," Baker said at a news conference before his address.

"We've got to have a new special prosecutor. We must shroud him and weave a cocoon around him so he has sufficient independence to do the job and do it quickly."

He said one possible compromise would be for Congress and the President to each name a prosecutor, both of whom would fall under the jurisdiction of U. S. District Court Judge John Sirica.

Top business barometer turns down

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government's index of leading business indicators, considered one of the best barometers of future economic conditions, turned down 0.4 per cent in September after a virtually uninterrupted three-year rise, the Commerce Department said today.

With the exception of a 1.1 per cent decline last April, it was the first falloff in the closely watched index since September, 1970, when the last big business expansion was getting under way.

Since the index has never failed to drop prior to a slowdown in the overall economy — or turn up before the start of a business expansion — turnabouts such as that for September generally raise speculation that a fundamental change in the economy's health may have taken place.

The index does not consist of new economic figures, but rather is an adjusted average of 12 monthly economic reports. Eight are always reported first and four others later, accounting for frequent revisions in the index number.

Last month, only two indicators rose — the length of the average work week, and stock prices. New claims for unemployment insurance dropped in September but that is considered a good sign for the index.

Five indicators dropped for the month — new orders for durable goods, contracts and orders for plants and equipment, price-labor cost ratio, industrial materials prices and building permits.

The index stood at 166.7 in September compared to 167.3 in August. In September, 1970, the index was 113.3.

Loans-to-Ford charge denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A spokesman for the Senate Rules Committee, which will hold hearings on the nomination of Gerald R. Ford to vice president, has denied that the panel received an affidavit from a lobbyist charging that Ford accepted $15,000 in loans he never paid back.

Columnist Jack Anderson reported Sunday that lobbyist Robert N. Winterberger submitted a four-page affidavit to the Senate Rules Committee charging that Ford accepted the money in "amounts of $50 to about $250" between 1966 and September, 1969, and never offered to pay it back.

Anderson quoted an unnamed aide to Ford as saying Winterberger's accusation was a "categorical lie," and Ford told UPI the allegations are false.

The lobbyist, Anderson reported, said the total amount of cash was "in the neighborhood of $15,000" and the money was accepted by Ford "to cover an illness and hospitalization of his wife," according to Anderson. On other occasions, Winterberger was reported to have said, the Michigan congressman "complained that he was short of money."

The House Judiciary Committee meets Tuesday to discuss ground rules for Ford's confirmation hearings.

Capitol dome goes unlighted

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Energy-conscious state officials have ordered night lighting on the golden dome of the Connecticut State Capitol building shut off beginning today.

State Public Works Commissioner Paul J. Manafort said the electricity to be saved by not turning on the dome lights may not make a significant difference in itself.

"But we are taking the step to symbolize the need for all Connecticut citizens to conserve electricity in every way possible," Manafort said.

Nixon spends time on Mideast issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Despite major unresolved questions in the Watergate controversy, President Nixon devoted most of his weekend at Camp David to work on arranging peace talks in the Middle East, his chief aide said.

White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig said Nixon's efforts were concentrated on helping set up peace talks between Israel and its Arab neighbors, and included telephone conversations with advisers in Washington.

Nixon returned to the White House Sunday evening, but there were none of the protesters who had earlier planned to conduct a round-the-clock vigil in support of impeachment.

About 1,000 demonstrators picketed the White House Saturday, urging motorists on Pennsylvania Avenue to "honk for impeachment."

President should have released tapes earlier, Connally contends

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary John Connally said Sunday that President Nixon should have released his White House tapes months ago. He also said the President owed the public a more detailed explanation of why he fired Archibald Cox, the Watergate special prosecutor.

"If indeed he was going to change his mind about the tapes, I'm sorry that he didn't do it three months ago or four months ago," Connally said in an interview on the "Capital Eye" television program.

"I think it would have saved him and saved the country an awful lot of trouble and chaos and confusion in the minds of some," the former Texas governor said.

Seven weeks ago Connally responded to reporters' questions about Nixon's right to withhold the tapes by saying there were some instances in which a

Quebec voters troop to polls

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Quebec's 3 million voters decide today between leaders who want the province to remain part of Canada and Separatists who want the mostly French-speaking region to cut ties with the rest of the country.

Voters may choose from candidates representing four different political parties, but the campaign was mostly a two-way battle between the Separatists' Parti Quebecois and the Federalist Liberals.

Pre-election polls showed Liberal Premier Robert Bourassa to be virtually assured of re-election, but Rene Levesque's Parti Quebecois, which advocates separation from Canada, could pick up enough seats in the 110-member National Assembly to become the official opposition in the parliamentary system.

Levesque, however, has maintained that if his Parti Quebecois should win, the election would not automatically mean separation from Canada. He said it would only lead to a referendum on a new constitution.

Uruguay closes state university

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) —The Uruguayan military government closed the national university today and placed the rector, the deans and 150 other persons under arrest for allowing subversive activities within the university.

Interior Minister Col. Nestor Bolentini announced the arrests and said the situation at the University of the Republic is "disastrous... The universities are no longer universities."

The government decided to intervene in the university after a four-hour meeting Sunday night among President Juan Maria Bordaberry, cabinet members and the commanders of the armed forces. Bordaberry has ruled by decree with the advice and consent of the military since June 27 when he closed Congress.

The crisis began Saturday when an explosion in the engineering school killed Marcos Caridad Jordan, 22, a chemistry student making a bomb.

Security forces immediately searched the university and found "arms, ammunition, explosive material... and a plan to systematically disturb the public order on certain dates," the government said.

president would be justified in ignoring a Supreme Court order. However, Connally did not amplify that statement.

Asked Sunday about the firing of Cox, Connally said, "I think it's a healthy thing," but he added the public should be told exactly why this action was taken.

"I must say that the President owed the country a better explanation for his actions than we got," Connally said.

Speaking earlier in Houston to the American Dental Association convention, Connally said those calling for impeachment of Nixon should either act or drop the matter.

"If those who have charged forth so bravely with their demands for impeachment of the President really think they have a case, then it's time for them to put up or shut up," he said.

CONTEMPT CHARGED

Abbie Hoffman holds his 2-year-old son, "America," during a news conference in Chicago Sunday. Hoffman, along with other defendants of the Chicago Seven, face contempt of court charges in a new trial which began today. The contempt charges stem from their behavior of the defendants and their attorneys during their 1969-70 trial in which they were acquitted on charges of conspiring to cross state lines to incite rioting at the riotous 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago.

Tricia profits in land deal charged by magazine

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Government investigators are looking into the possibility that Tricia Nixon Cox, the President's elder daughter, profited from the sale of Florida land bought by her father and failed to report the gain on her income tax return, Newsweek magazine reports this week.

The White House called the story "false and irresponsible" and part of a "witch hunt atmosphere" in the national news media.

According to Newsweek, investigators are also probing three "previously undisclosed trusts" set up by the President and controlled by former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

The White House confirmed existence of the trusts naming Haldeman and Ehrlichman but said they were set up as a plan for property at the time of the President's death and contained only token assets.

"The Newsweek magazine story publishing charges about the President's finances and which is now becoming a national news story is false and extremely irresponsible in its implications and in the way it was developed," the White House statement said.

"Newsweek's collection of rumors including suggestions of property manipulation by the President to reduce capital gains taxation illustrates the difficulty of dealing with this kind of story and the great and irreparable damage it causes."

"Newsweek's decision to publish this story, developed from anonymous sources, instead of taking the time to establish its accuracy and to do so in the face of flat denials from the White House is symptomatic of the witch hunt atmosphere in which false information and harmful impressions about the President are being generated and broadly disseminated to the American people by major news media."

The magazine said Nixon bought two lots of land near his Key Biscayne home for $37,600 in 1967 and sold them five years later for $150,000, leaving him a profit of $112,400.

Newsweek called Mrs. Cox "an unrecorded partner in the deal," saying her name was not on the purchase or sale documents but that "associates of the President" said the purchase price included $20,000 of her money.

According to Newsweek, investiga-

Troop, arms cuts overseas being probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Alleged lack of cooperation by European allies during the U.S. military response to the Middle East crisis has prompted administration officials to take a "hard look" at possible troop and arms cutbacks overseas.

Government sources said no decisions have been made, but they reported discussions are taking place, involving a serious review about U.S. military relationships with the NATO allies.

"We're going to be taking a hard look at whether this has long-range implications, or whether it was just a crisis anomaly," one official said. "We may very well decide we want to put some of those forces (in Europe) somewhere else."

The sources said that while the United States regards its military operations in Europe to be part of an overall force ready for use in any emergency, the response to the crisis events last week indicated to some in Washington that the European allies view the American forces as restricted to the defense of Europe only.

tors told it "they have information that the President claimed the entire capital gain on the deal as income on his own federal income tax return."

"Since he had established large deductions in donations and interest paid, the theory ran, he would pay less total tax on Tricia's share of the profit than she would have owed."

The White House said: "The President did not claim the entire capital gain from the sale of the property cited on his tax return. On the contrary, the President and his daughter each reported their share of the profit."

Newsweek quoted the White House as saying it was "not aware of any official investigation relating to the President's personal finances."

In the statement issued Sunday evening, the White House said Arthur Blech, the California accountant who handled the President's tax returns, was "asked questions about the President's taxes in his interview with the Watergate committee on Friday and that these questions were worded in a virtually identical fashion to the Newsweek story."

"Mr. Blech, the statement continued, 'stated that he informed the committee investigators that the allegations had no basis in fact' and that he had not been contacted by Newsweek."

"Again," the White House statement concluded, "we face a situation where a story runs nationally which is untrue; where the first wire service reports to not contain the denials of the White House and the clarifying facts have difficulty catching up with the original and extremely harmful story."

"It is unfortunate that supposedly responsible media are more interested in publishing anonymous rumors than they are in determining the truth of what they print."

Masked man steals money bag at plaza

MONTCLAIR — A man wearing a stocking mask stole a money bag from an assistant manager of the Cinema I and II Theater as she was making a night deposit at the Crocker Bank in the Montclair Plaza Sunday, police reported.

Police said the thief took one of two green money bags Cristin Figg was putting in the night deposit box. One of the bags contained approximately $821 and the other approximately $1,473. Police had yet to determine which bag was taken.

Police reports said Mrs. Figg drove up to the bank building Sunday and got out of her car to deposit the money bags. A man described as a Caucasian, 180 to 200 pounds, wearing a woman's nylon stocking mask jumped out of the bushes at the Exxon Service Station east of the bank and yelled, "Hold it, right there." Mrs. Figg said she froze and the man grabbed both of the money bags, but dropped one as he fled on foot. She said she placed the second bag in the deposit box and called police.

George Gilbert to speak of 'melting pot'

George Gilbert will emphasize the fact that the United States is truly a melting-pot nation during his program for Pomona Ebell on Friday.

"How Other People Talk" will be Mr. Gilbert's topic at the 1:30 p.m. program and tea in the Ebell Clubhouse, 585 E. Holt Ave.

A graduate of the University of Minnesota who also has a master's degree in speech from the University of Southern California, Mr. Gilbert does innumerable voice pictures of famous personalities as well as over 35 accents and dialects.

He is a member of the Free Enterprise Speakers Bureau sponsored by Coast Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Mrs. Rufus Knight, Ebell member, will exhibit her needlepoint in the clubhouse parlors during November. She won her first art award while still a Pomona High School student for a portfolio of leather work entered in a national contest. Her reward was a scholarship to the Art Center in Los Angeles.

Alumnae Club luncheon planned

An informal luncheon meeting will be held by the Pomona Valley Alumnae Club of Kappa Kappa Gamma on Saturday at The Depot, Claremont, at noon.

She has exhibited and won awards in leather tooling, poster painting, knitting, stitchery and needlepoint. Her needlepoints include many items in her home, ranging from pictures and pillows to coverings for chairs.

"Where Food is Made with Butter 'n' Love"

GOSH (Griswold's Old School House) in Claremont is a bastion of activity. The GOSH girls are becoming well known for their tours that explain this unique shopping and dining complex — real nostalgia in the old school building.

One of our GOSH Girls was visiting the Johnny Carson show at NBC in Burbank. A woman came up to her smiling and said, "You work at Griswold's don't you? You save us our GOSH Tour. I was with the group from Arcadia and we had a great time!"

The new shops are open and we know you will have a "great time" too! Your group will enjoy a GOSH tour.

How To Hold FALSE TEETH

Securely
Do false teeth embarrass you by coming loose when you eat, laugh or talk? A denture adhesive can help. FASTEETH gives dentures a longer, firmer, steadier hold. Makes eating more enjoyable. For more security and comfort, use FASTEETH Denture Adhesive Powder. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly.
